BY PAUL STEVENSON.
In the proverbial blaze of glory, with all Atlanta fashion a-glitter and with some of the foremost stars of the Metropolitan Opera company singing leading roles, Atlanta's 17th season of grand opera was launched at the auditorium Monday night with Giuseppe Verdi's classic, "La Traviata." Mine. Avelita Galli-Curci, one of the greatest coloratura sopranos of all time; Beniamino Gigli, one of the world's outstanding tenors; and Lawrence Tibbett, sensational young baritone, sang as if inspired in the premiere opera of the local season and gave Atlanta music lovers a production which will linger long in memory.
It was a night of triumph for Mme. Galli-Curci and likewise for Gigli and Tibbett. Golden voices in golden songs, pure melody flowing forth like the trickles of a mountain stream. Now trills and clarion notes, now intense drama, here one emotion, there another, stirring ensembles, then like a flash a change to almost soft crooning. Harmonies blended to perfect pitch. Verdi's matchless music in one of the all-time classics of opera. That is "La Traviata" as sung before the

Grand Opera

Of course there are thousands of people in Atlanta who do not attend grand opera; but all take pride in this musical event as an evidence that Atlanta is the leading city of the south.

It brings to the city hosts of visitors who have an opportunity to witness Atlanta's wonderful advancement and the business enterprise that makes it the hub of all the south.

Grand opera week is a factor in making our mercantile establishments the greatest in the south, the real benefit of which is for the all-year-round resident of this trading radius.

Read the advertisements of these mercantile establishments in this morning's Constitution. The offers made are unusually attractive, and the prices are right.

Scenes on the Biltmore terrace Monday morning when energetic members of the Metropolitan Opera company left comfortable sleeping quarters early to revel in southern sunshine—which could have been warmer without discomfort. At left Beniamino Gigli, the popular tenor, is proving to Rita LaPorte, premiere danseuse with the ballet, that if his voice wasn't such an effective income producer he could keep the wolf away from the Gigli menage with his feet. In the center Edward Ziegler, assistant general manager of the company, is telling a story to Louise Hunter, the dainty soprano, that must be good, judging by Miss Hunter's expression. Miss Ziegler, who accompanied her father south—"just for the trip"—likes the story but, inasmuch as she has probably heard all dad's stories numerous times before, isn't laughing with utmost abandon. At right Nannette Guilford, another popular little soprano, is initiating Giovanni Martinelli into the fine points of judging a Pekinese.

Snyder Murder Trial Rivals Arabian Nights

BY SAM LOVE.

New York, April 25.—(United News.)—To convict Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray of the murder of Albert Snyder, an unpurged tale of the Arabian nights was broadcast by the state Monday through two loudspeakers in the ornate Queens county courtroom.
Humor was in the recital, witness the defendant Gray's possession of "gentlemen prefer blondes."
But it was a fleeting touch. The familiar Oriental motives of illicit love and avarice took shape and emerged in vivid detail.
Oriental attention to the mechanics of love and plotting was adopted by the state to make intelligible to the jury the almost unbelievable climax achieved by the two rather handsome, harmless-seeming defendants.
Audience Listens.
An audience of notables as well as commoners of Bagdad on the subway listened avidly and watched the hero and heroine of the tale wilt as their happiest, most intimate moments arose to damn them.
District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe assumed the role of Scheherazade and outlined for all to hear the story of the unsuspecting husband, the pretty blonde wife and the traveling vendor of corsets, whom she found fair to look upon.

Thirteen witnesses took up the recital, filling in detail after detail until Edgar F. Hazleton, counsel for Mrs. Snyder, arose from the table where she sat with bowed head and crimson cheeks and shouted a protest.
"This is a murder trial, not an adultery trial," he cried out to Supreme Court Justice Scudder.
Establishes "Motive."
But the calm district attorney, called upon by the court, said:
"We are establishing motive, your honor."
The objection was overruled and the intimate affairs of the cleft-chinned defendants fluttered around them like their registry sheets from the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, and piled up like their joint belongings dumped from their mutual suitcase on the table in front of the jury—the pajamas, morning-after medicines and toothbrushes of their love.
But the twin note of avarice was sounded nearly as often. It came hard upon the heels of passion.
When court was adjourned for the day the state had thumped hard and long upon $96,000 insurance taken out by Snyder without knowing what he was doing.
The public dumping of the brown bag's intimacies climaxed the love motive testimony of the day.
Mail Carrier Introduced.
District Attorney Newcombe closed this portion of the recital on a minor theme by introducing an unwitting assistant in the deception of the husband.
He was George Marks, a mail carrier.
Mail Carrier Marks said Mrs. Snyder had asked him to deliver all mail addressed to "Jane Gray" or "Mrs. J. Gray," and to give it to her personally.
"It comes from one of my boy friends," he said she had explained.
Later, the mail man said, she asked also for personal delivery of all letters from the Prudential Insurance company and the New York Telephone company.
On March 21, the day after Snyder was murdered, Marks said, he delivered three letters to the home. They presumably, fell into the hands of the police but were not read into the evidence.
The first day of the second week of the Snyder-Gray murder trial was chill and dreary as to weather, but it did not prevent a crowd of 250 persons from standing in front of the courthouse all day, held back by a detail of 20 police. Many baby-bug-

GRAY-CLAD LINE TO MARCH TODAY

Remnant of Lee's Mighty Host Once More Honors Memorial Day of Dead Comrades.

Legions in gray will march today in Atlanta.
And each gray-clad figure, living and dead, will be a memory.
For Atlanta pauses in its forward trend to pay tribute to the soldiers of the Confederacy who, 66 years ago, proffered their lives in furtherance of an ideal and wrote a glorious chapter in the annals of the United States.
City and county officers, and the banks, will close their doors, while officials unite in lending assistance to the observance of the day.
Parade at 1:45.
The Memorial parade will be launched at 1:45 at the junction of Peachtree and West Peachtree streets, at Baker, proceeding south along Whitehall to Hunter, thence east to the Oakland cemetery where graves will be decorated, following speaking and song.

NEW GRADY RULES FOES LOSE AGAIN

Council Committee Files Petition Against Enforcement of Rules After Heated Argument.

Opponents to revised rules for conduct of the white unit of Grady hospital, Monday night lost a third attempt to prevent placing the new regulations in operation in a session featured by verbal clashes which at times threatened to precipitate personal encounters.
The hospitals and charities committee of city council voted to file a petition, offered for the second time and purporting to come from the executive committee of the hospital composed of heads of departments of the staff.
This is the third unsuccessful battle waged by opponents to enactment of rules which they claim will work to the detriment of the hospital and "probably endanger its standing with the American College of Surgeons."
Dr. E. C. Thrash and Alderman J. Allen Couch, member of the committee, engaged in a hot argument when Mr. Couch intimated that the whole

President Coolidge Sees Adjustment Of Mexican Row

Executive Tells Publishers That Mexico Has Promised Not To Confiscate U. S. Property.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
New York, April 25.—(United News.)—Peaceful adjustment of the Mexican oil controversy was predicted by President Coolidge in outlining a friendly policy toward Mexico, China and Nicaragua at the 20th anniversary dinner of the United News tonight.
In his address the president made a frank statement of his foreign policy, disclaiming imperialistic motives and programs of military aggrandizement, and emphasizing that the United States, in its dealings with weaker nations, would temper justice with mercy.
The president was applauded vigorously when he declared the hope that the United States and Mexico would continue in friendly relations and that the oil dispute would be amicably settled.
At the conclusion of his speech there was prolonged applause with the audience standing.
The president spoke before a distinguished gathering of public men and publishers from all parts of the United States.
Will Not Seize Property.
He announced for the first time that Mexico has assured this government that she does not intend to seize American property under the oil law. Accepting this assurance at face value, the president predicted an amicable adjustment, thus disposing of fears expressed in some quarters recently that we were headed for a break.
"I am glad to report that the Mexican ambassador has recently declared to me that she does not intend to confiscate our property, that she has shown diligence in capturing and punishing those who have murdered our citizens and expressed the wish, which we so thoroughly entertain, of keeping cordial and friendly relations," the president said.
"With a strong sentiment of this nature, which, I am convinced, animates the people of both countries, it will surely be possible to reach amicable adjustment. Our two peoples ought to so conduct themselves that

Scores Rodeo At Lakewood As 'Inhumane'

Governor and Mayor Indorse Proposed Show, While Mrs. Weathersbee Attacks.

On the heels of indorsement Monday by Governor Clifford Walker and Mayor L. N. Ragsdale of the rodeo planned at Lakewood park for a week beginning May 14, Mrs. Katherine Weathersbee, executive secretary of the Atlanta Humane society and secretary of the Georgia State Humane association, launched a bitter attack on the proposed performances and declared "indignant Atlanta womanhood is denouncing it."
In addition to holding offices in the humane organizations of the city and state, Mrs. Weathersbee is chairman of humane education of the Fifth Ward Parent-Teacher association, and holds other important committee assignments in such work.
Branding the show as "an abhorrent exhibition, particularly inopportune just after the kindness to animals week in Atlanta," Mrs. Weathersbee denounced efforts of "a group of showmen to capitalize on inhumane treatment to which dumb animals will be subjected."
"We need nothing of these rodeo and bullfighting shows here," she declared. "They are clearly inhumane and should not be permitted. Other cities have banned them and Atlanta should do likewise."
Despite the protests of Mrs. Weathersbee, who stated that she was protesting in "behalf of myself and many constituent organizations," Jack Ault, promoter of the performances slated for Lakewood, exhibited letters of indorsement from Governor Walker and Mayor Ragsdale.
The governor declared that he had witnessed a similar show in Cheyenne.

FORCIBLE REMOVAL IS ONLY SOLUTION, SAYS GUARD HEAD

"There Is No Use To Risk Danger of Large Loss of Lives" Asserts General Green.

25 DIE IN WATER TO ESCAPE BLAZE

Memphis, Tenn., April 25.—(AP)—Twenty-five persons, whites and negroes, were drowned at Heads, a small village, near Leland, yesterday when they jumped into the flood waters to escape from a burning building, the Memphis Commercial-Appeal said tonight in a dispatch from a staff correspondent at Leland.

Vicksburg, Miss., April 25.—

(United News.)—With scores of marooned families refusing to abandon their homes, four hundred Mississippi national guardsmen were held in readiness Monday night to effect a forcible removal of flood refugees in the lower Mississippi valley region. Vicksburg already was crowded with thousands of whites and negroes. Curtis Green, commander of the national guard, told the United Press the men and boats at his command were prepared to evacuate the entire delta region within a short time if the necessity arose.
Virtual martial law already existed in Greenville, Leland and Rolling Forks, Mississippi towns inundated with several feet of water.

The Only Solution.
Forcible removal of residents throughout the entire region was recommended by Gen. Green as "the only solution from a military relief point of view." He said members of rescue crews reported scores of families declined to leave their marooned homes.
"There is no need to risk the danger of a large loss of life because of the attitude of these people, and the problem should be met with a firm hand," Gen. Green declared.

Commercial airplanes, commanded by the Mississippi national guard, winged their way with medical supplies over the flood area, dropping loads at various towns to aid in the fight against disease. Two expeditions were sent to the delta region, one of health officers, and another of engineers. On their reports depends

HOUGHTON TELLS STAGE EXPERIENCE

How a youth was imbued with a love of the stage, through his associations with the church, and how the religious influence of his mother drew him back from the footlights to the pulpit, was told Monday night by Dr. Will H. Houghton, pastor of the Baptist tabernacle.

Over a thousand people were turned away from the tabernacle after nearly 4,000 had found room inside, to hear the opening night service of the second week of the revival series now in progress there. Dr. Houghton had announced he would tell the story of his own life, calling his talk "From Stage to Pulpit." He told how he became interested in the stage through his boyhood participation in church plays and bazaar, criticizing this form of church activity by saying he had never "read in the Bible any directions to 'raise' money for the Lord, all of the injunctions being to 'give' to the Lord."

After spending two years in musical comedies and two years on the Keith vaudeville circuit, the youthful Houghton—he had just completed high school and not entered college when he joined the theatrical profession—was induced by his mother to hear a famous evangelist in Brooklyn, N. Y. There he was converted and, after attending college, became a Baptist minister.

Dr. Houghton told many interesting incidents of his stage career. He was never in the movies, he said, his footlights days being before the screen had attained its present popularity. "And besides," he added, "I had never been divorced."

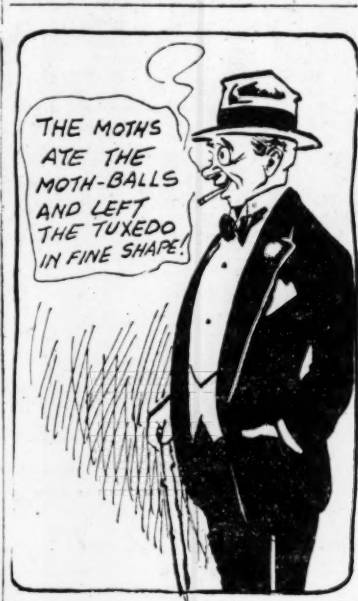

He told how, after each season, he would go home to visit his mother and, after saying that she was now in her eternal home in heaven, said he hoped to "go home" to her there, when he was on earth. "I had never been divorced," he added, "I had never been divorced."

The revival services will continue through next Sunday, the Atlanta Brass quartet, of New York, provides special musical features, while a series of living pictures, shown in a grand frame hung above the pulpit, there is a prayer meeting daily at 7:15 a. m., and the pastor speaks each afternoon from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock and at nights at 7:30 o'clock. Tonight he will give his famous sermon, "The Christ and the Crowd," which attracted so much comment a year ago that he has been repeatedly urged to give it again.

"TRAVIATA" PROVES TO BE HOT STUFF

at least everything we've ever read conveyed that idea—and the canny producer of the opera probably rung him in to heighten the general effect of pleasant and sinful diversion. What a pity it was that Mr. Pavia didn't live now so that he could have signed up "Peaches" Browning and Aimee McPherson and Harry K. Thaw as grand, extra-added, attractions! The first night of the opera, the piece called "Traviata," who falls hard for little fat man called Alfredo. They decide to go out on some street in Gay Terrace and open up light housekeeping in an arrangement which the police by every right should have nipped in the bud promptly.

Gives Up Lover. Alfredo's old man happens along at this time and pleads with the bedridden husky to quit ramping his son. Violetta, weeping like a leaky hydrant, says all right, she'll leave the boy, but he was certainly a nice fellow. I suppose she felt that if she persisted the old man would slap Alfredo in the insane asylum or jail or college or some other institution of correction. Anyway, it seems she'd been paying all expenses.

So the girl gives her lover up smiling through her tears and snaps right out of a $40 flat into a gorgeous apartment with a view of the bay and a commendable sacrifice. Alfredo—brokenhearted and forlorn—promptly chases off with a flock of good-looking girls, and when he meets Violetta he gives her the razors for being untrue to him despite the fact that he himself hasn't been quite the very essence of constancy.

Then comes the horrible part of the play. Alfredo finds that he's been a fish and that Violetta didn't release him without a struggle. Overcome with remorse, he catches a taxi and breaks the Italian speed laws to get to her house.

He finds her dying of consumption. (No, it so happened that the lady didn't weigh a ton), and she expires in his arms frantically assuring him he's the hottest papa she ever had.

You leave the auditorium with a mental memorandum to call the state board of health and report conditions as you found them, and also to buy extra supply of Red Cross seals next Christmas.

Did you get a kick out of the costumes of "Traviata"? I did. Lawrence Tibbett with his stovepipe hat and jim-swinger coat, and Galli-Curci in hoopskirts and bean-eater curls made me think of "Blossom Time" in its fifth and last appearance in Atlanta.

Gigli, the passionate but dumb lover, struck a false note (in costume only) with his green sweater and hostler's boots, but all the way through I kept expecting somebody to blaze away with "You Are My Song of Love."

That much-whistled and oft-quoted melody, you'll remember, swept Atlanta by storm when "Blossom Time" was in swaddling clothes and hadn't sprouted a beard. Wonder how the city would receive it if it were rendered in approved Italian?

When I walked into the auditorium Monday night and completed the usual argument with the man at the door, I glanced about the colorful assemblage in the foyer seeking a well-known figure.

It was Billy Guard—and there he was, just as he was on opening night last year and the year before that and for all the six years the Met has come south to seek the soul of Atlanta in the wine of its music.

He was the same Billy Guard, a trifle grayer, perhaps, and a bit more willowy of stature, if such a thing is possible. Who "couldn't" be gray and thin after uncounted years of press agenting the Metropolitan's crew of cosmopolitans and straightening out their differences?

I asked him for the news of the company, and he told me that all the old Atlanta guard with friends in the Metropolitan ranks had been down to greet their buddies. There was all the customary handslapping and that sort of thing, and nothing more.

And he wound up by promising to take me on a tour back stage, an experience I have enjoyed in Billy Guard's company for the past four years. Will I go? You said it.

There's been many a traffic jam at the big central entrance to the auditorium proper in past years, but none like the mob scene enacted there Monday night.

I was looking for an acquaintance—and here I resist with a rare display of power the impulse to spring that old one about the needle and the haystack—and as I alternately bucked and crawled my way a distance of three yards, two bald gentlemen held a conference about a real estate purchase on my left foot and a corpulent dowager dug an effective opera glass beneath my fourth and fifth ribs.

The button on my coat sleeve collected a silk handkerchief from somewhere unknown to me, and an absent-minded young thing with her attention riveted on her sleek, powdered nose instead of her own in the confusion.

That taught me a lesson—to get a seat and stay in it. So I went over to a box (whose it was I still don't know) and parked there for the rest of the show.

STATE SETS OUT TO CONVICT PAIR

Examiners Jurors. The opening of court was delayed an hour while Justice Scudder examined two jurors in chambers. They had been reported in newspapers as going out in public over Sunday. The jurors, among the dozen obtained after a week of grueling effort, were retained.

The courtroom, which, speculating on the chance of a trial, speculated also upon the presence in one corner of a guarded dictograph machine and two dozen records. It was not denied by the district attorney's staff that the confessions of Gray and Mrs. Snyder were etched into the fragile wax.

interred at the famous old Fifth Avenue hotel at diverse times from February 10, 1925, to February 9, 1927—the first date well before the increase in insurance, the latter not long before the murder.

Farrell identified Mrs. Snyder as the woman he had supposed for more than two years to be Mrs. H. Judd Gray. He arose in the witness box, leaned forward and said he was positive.

There came two women, Mrs. Isabelle Wright, for 21 years a floor clerk at the Waldorf-Astoria, and Miss Eleanor L. Foley, young and smartly attired in gray, also a floor clerk. They identified Mrs. Snyder as the "Mrs. H. Judd Gray" of the Waldorf. Although the "H. Judd Grays" had many rooms for many nights at the Waldorf, they often had obtained room number 872, and were familiar to the 2nd floor clerks.

Raymond Bruen, a Waldorf checkroom attendant, and Lieut. James Smith, a blunt-spoken, red haired police officer, combined to supply embarrassing details of amours in a canvasser's.

Identifies Brown Bag. Bruen identified the capacious brown bag that went into evidence as supplying "Mr. and Mrs. H. Judd Gray's" portable necessities.

Lieutenant Smith, after its contents had been dumped in a heap in front of the jurors, listed the exposed intimacies of living in a loud monotone.

David Wark Griffith, the director of "The Birth of a Nation" and more recently, "The Sorrows of Satan," thrust forward his hawk-like nose with interest. As the list proceeded he leaned back in appreciation. The most expert movie director could have been no more thorough in the matter of necessities.

David Belasco, producer of "Lulu Belle" and kindred moral lessons extending back for many years, had just turned out for the morning, but he came to the courtroom after bowing graciously to Maurice Watkins, author of the play "Chicago." So he missed this. But the Marquis and Marchioness of Queensbury were still there, as were other notables.

A partial list of the brown bag's contents besides toilet articles, tooth brushes, a make outfit for the well-turned out woman, and Judd Gray's morning aspirin included:

FLOOD COMMITTEE WILL VISIT AREA

Chicago, April 25.—(AP)—U. S. Representative Frank R. Reid, of Aurora, Ill., tonight named Representative Willis G. Sears, of Omaha, Neb., and William F. Kopp, of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, members of the congressional committee on flood control, of which Reid is chairman, to accompany him to the stricken flood area within the next 10 days as guests of the Mississippi Valley association.

That Reid himself and two members of the flood control committee visit the distressed zones within 10 days was urged in a telegram today from U. S. Senator Joseph E. Bland, of Louisiana; Representatives James O'Connor, of Louisiana, and William Collier, of Mississippi, and Riley Wilson, ranking democratic member of the flood control committee of the house of representatives.

In his telegram tonight to Senator Randall, Reid said:

"As chairman of the committee of flood control of the house of representatives, and personally, I desire to do everything possible to help. The violence of the present flood may well serve to challenge the attention of the people so that they may realize that flood control is not a local matter and thereby lead to congressional action providing for a comprehensive plan of flood control."

COUNCIL FAVORS ANNEXING MOVE

Deferring action on several important proposals until more information could be furnished, the charter revision committee of city council Monday acted favorably on a proposal to annex East Point, College Park and Hapeville if these municipalities vote annexation.

Dr. C. J. Vaughan, chairman, presided. Action on a paper offered by Councilman John A. White, proposing to take into the city large strips of territory designed to double the size of Atlanta, was deferred and W. R. Thomas, secretary of the city planning commission, was instructed to prepare plans showing just what territory on the north, north-west and north-east would be affected. The other paper of Mr. White suggesting that East Point, College Park and Hapeville be annexed was passed favorably, pending ratification of the proposal by the cities involved.

A proposed amendment to the city charter providing for a tax increase of 2 cents on the $100 in order to "place Atlanta's schools on a 'B' basis" also was left without any definite decision pending action of the Atlanta board of education on it. The paper was referred to the board at the same time it went to the charter committee, but the board has not yet considered it.

The committee approved another measure offered by Mr. White, which is designed to amend the state constitution as to make it legal for municipalities to enact and enforce zoning codes. Other routine matters also were considered.

NEW GRADY RULES FOES LOSE AGAIN

complaint was "based on doctor's politics," which Mr. Couch said seemed to be taking precedent over relieving suffering Atlanta's poor and unfortunate.

Dr. Thrash resented the statement and when he challenged it, Mr. Couch quoted a statement made just before by Dr. LeRoy Childs, who had said he was afraid some doctors were placing personal and political ambition above the service at Grady. Dr. Thrash said he resigned his post at Grady one time because he objected to being associated with members of the executive committee who were addicted to the use of intoxicants.

The petition offered to the committee as in substance the same which was presented to that body about a month ago, and which was curtly turned down. It was charged that opponents of the rules called a caucus of the executive committee and that two members, Dr. Marion Benson and Dr. Newdigate M. Owensby, were not invited to attend. Other members of the executive committee, who had signed it, but some of them said they agreed to it without knowing what was on it.

Dr. C. C. White and Dr. Childs led the fight on the petition, claiming that it in no manner represented the real feeling of the executive staff, and therefore, was not a fair paper to be considered.

Members of the hospitals and charities committee took the same stand they had taken formerly and voted to table the issue. Only minor routine matters were considered aside from the petition.

PEACE WITH MEXICO SEEN BY PRESIDENT

there will never be any interference with our ancient ties of friendship."

Forged Documents.
This friendly utterance takes on special significance because of sinister reports from Mexico City regarding the contents of the confidential official documents and alleged forgeries stolen from the American embassy there and handed over to President Calles. These documents, it is reported, caused the Mexican government to be much disturbed over the attitude of the United States.

Without alluding in any way to this incident, President Coolidge made it plain to Mexico that the United States has only the most peaceable intentions.

Negotiation rather than arbitration offers the best means of settling the oil dispute, the president said. "The senate recently passed a resolution supporting the protection of American life and property and suggesting resort to arbitration," President Coolidge said. "We have at present two commissions of arbitration with Mexico, and the principle of arbitration always has been strongly advocated by our government. Everybody favors arbitration when the question at issue is arbitrable. Under the present circumstances I can see no grave difficulties in formulating a question which the two governments would agree to submit to such a tribunal."

"The principle that property is not to be confiscated and the duty of our government to protect it are so well established that it is doubtful if they should be permitted to be questioned. Very likely Mexico would feel that the right to make a constitution and pass laws is a privilege of her sovereignty which she could not permit to be brought into question. It has therefore seemed that we are more likely to secure an adjustment through negotiation."

Denies Imperialism.
President Coolidge said there is nothing imperialistic in requiring that when American citizens go into foreign countries, they enjoy the rights granted under international law. Reviewing the history of the Mexican oil controversy, the president continued:

"We do not question their right to take any property, provided they pay fair compensation. With their efforts to secure a division of great estates, so that more of their people may be landowners, we have every sympathy. We have even agreed that our government would accept the bonds of the Mexican government in payment for damages awarded by the commission for land taken for this purpose."

"Of course, we do not want any controversy with Mexico. We feel every sympathy with her people in their distress and have every desire to assist them. Instead of desiring to pursue any aggression or to take part in any oppression, we are endeavoring through the most friendly efforts to demonstrate to their government that their attitude in relation to property will not only result in economic disaster to their own people by preventing the investment of outside capital so necessary for their development, but will greatly impair their friendly relations with other interested nations."

Refers to Nicaragua.
Turning to Nicaragua, the president said:

"We are not making war on Nicaragua any more than a policeman on the street is making war on passers-by. We are there to protect our citizens and their property from being destroyed by war and to lend every encouragement we can to the restoration of peace."

President Coolidge said the United States feels a special moral responsibility to countries this side of the Panama canal, and has tried to encourage revolution, and encourage their economic development.

Patience in China.
Patience toward China is necessary and our sole interest is to protect our citizens and property there, the president said.

"We have nothing in the way of concessions," he explained. "We have never occupied any territory."

He said that last January the United States indicated a willingness to give China tariff autonomy and to abandon extraterritorial rights as soon as China could protect American property and citizens.

"We feel her the deepest sympathy in these times of her distress," the president continued. "We have no disposition to do otherwise than to assist and encourage every legitimate aspiration for freedom, for unity, for the cultivation of a national spirit, and the realization of a republican form of government.

"We do not wish to pursue any course of aggression against the Chinese people. We are there to prevent aggression against our people by any of their disorderly elements. We shall of course maintain the dignity of our government and insist upon proper respect being extended to our authority. But our actions will at all times be those of a friend solicitous for the well-being of the Chinese people."

Mr. Rogers called on Atlantans to support the show, which is being staged under the auspices of the Junior Order of American Mechanics and the Atlanta Police Relief association.

"We do not plan to hurt the animals," Mr. Aull said. "Our only purpose is to give an exhibition which will be clean sportsmanship and educational. To this end we are engaging the world's best talent for the performances here, today receiving word from Chester Byers, Oklahoma City cowboy, world's champion trick rider and fancy rope performer, that he will be with us when the big gates of the Southeastern fair open on the rodeo."

J. Oscar Mills, secretary of the Southeastern Fair association, owner and operator of Lakewood amusement park, Monday stated that the association had leased the grounds to promoters of the affair as an educational feature and in order to assist the benefited organizations.

FORCIBLE EVACUATION PLANNED BY GUARD

FORCIBLE EVACUATION ORDERS ARE ISSUED BY GERALD P. OVERTON.

Memphis, Tenn., April 25.—(United News.)—The nation's greatest flood peril became graver tonight along the lower Mississippi valley, and military orders for forcible evacuation of refugees were issued.

General Green, commander of the Mississippi national guard, issued orders for evacuation of Greenville and half a dozen other flooded towns.

A fleet of more than 100 boats was assembled at Vicksburg to bring residents out of the flood area, by force if necessary, and commandeered commercial airplanes swept over the territory, dropping loads of medical supplies at various towns in the fight against disease.

147,000 REFUGEES LISTED BY HOOVER.
BY ALFRED F. BECK.

Memphis, Tenn., April 25.—(United News.)—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has listed 147,000 flood refugees.

Just before leaving on the government steamer Chesapeake to inspect flood conditions, he gave out the following figures:

Mississippi, 80,000 homeless; Arkansas, 30,000; Missouri, 8,000; Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee, 3,000 each.

Red Cross directors have been placed in charge of all refugee camps and a systematic supply service organized. State health officials are on guard against outbreaks of disease. Efforts are being made to move the refugees below Memphis to towns and villages further back from the river banks.

"Our problem lies below Vicksburg where the latest reports are causing increased anxiety," Hoover said.

Problems Settled.
In consequence of the directions from Washington, given last Friday, the Red Cross and government agencies met this morning to settle our first problem, that of direct concentration of all efforts," Hoover explained.

"Mr. Baker, of the Red Cross, has been placed in charge of all relief work."

"Army engineers will oversee all transportation work and rescue work, acting with the Mississippi river commission and district engineers."

"Additional boats have been ordered to the new danger points so that there will be no delay in the removal of the people in case of further levee breaks."

"I have requested the secretary of agriculture to assign a liaison officer to start the rehabilitation work in the northern areas which have started to drain."

"I have asked for an engineer officer to take charge of all railroad transportation."

Hoover laid his plans rapidly and gave his orders with the precision of an army captain. Before the conference with Baker was over he had decided to hasten his trip to Vicksburg and within less than an hour had arranged with the governors of Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana to send representatives there for a conference.

SIX MORE DEATHS IN FLOOD REGIONS.
Little Rock, Ark., April 25.—(AP)—Five more deaths by drowning and one from pneumonia growing out of exposure in the Arkansas floods were reported here today. Two of the five drowned were white men, whose names could not be ascertained.

2,000 PEOPLE FLEE FROM ARKANSAS CITY.
Little Rock, Ark., April 25.—(AP)—An evacuated city, its 2,000 residents, now refugees, concentrated on levees and other high places, Arkansas City tonight is under water from 7 to 14 feet deep and the onrushing flood waters from the Arkansas river are inundating other towns within a wide area in southeastern Arkansas.

As refugees fled from Arkansas City today into McGee, they found water rising rapidly there, conditions over the whole area were described as alarming and food and clothing and motors for use in equipping rescue boats were rushed forward by both sea and land planes.

Several hundred families from Arkansas City and the surrounding flooded country have been rendered homeless. Many of them are congregated on levees without shelter and food, while others are perched on house-tops and in trees. Four hundred refugees are housed in the state agricultural school at Monticello.

STEAMER INSPECTOR SLIPS THROUGH LEVEE.
New Orleans, April 25.—Breaking 16th levee as though they were twine, the steamer Inspector which has been lying in the crevasse of the Mississippi levee on the Junior plantation since Saturday night, slipped through the levee this afternoon until her bridge was almost in the canal.

Grave fears were felt by workers that the ship would break in two. Her stern is exposed to a terrific current which is pushing her in despite efforts of two tugs to draw her out. The crevasse now is 100 feet wide. It was made late Saturday afternoon.

Evacuation also was going forward at Indianola, Arcola and other towns in the Mississippi delta, but there was no forcible evacuation by order of the military authorities either in these places or in Greenville, Adjutant General Green announced at Vicksburg.

While the flood waters were spreading at an alarming pace, comprehensive plans were laid here for relief with Secretary Hoover's hand at the helm. Coming here from Washington by direction of the president, the man who led Belgium through the war, hurriedly conferred with Red Cross and other officials and announced that the full resources of the government would be placed at the disposal of the relief agencies.

The commerce secretary, before embarking on a special tour down the Mississippi to Vicksburg and New Orleans to get a first-hand picture of the situation, declared that the full five million dollars the country had been asked to give through the Red Cross would be needed and that perhaps more would have to be called for later.

Meantime agencies of the government were enacting forces rapidly in the flood district with supplies of all kinds to relieve the sufferings of the people. June 12, 1900 now homeless. Rescue work also was going on a pace in all districts with the aid of additional motor boats and sea and air planes used to spot out the refugees on levees, knolls and house-tops in isolated districts.

With the flood waters slowly creeping back into the Mississippi river tributaries, a constant rise in the river between Natchez and New Orleans was noted today with the gauge at New Orleans showing a rise of 2 of a foot to 2 1/2 feet, 4 feet above the flood stage.

Memphis, Tenn., April 25.—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover arrived here at 7:30 o'clock this morning as President Coolidge's representative in the direction of relief work for the flood stricken Mississippi valley.

$22,000 SECURED IN ARMY'S DRIVE

With more than $5,000 reported Monday, the banner report since the opening day of the Dixie headquarters fund campaign, men and women team workers enter another day of the campaign with a determination to make Wednesday's report even greater than that of Monday. Over $22,000 of the $50,000 quota has been secured.

The fact that Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has accepted the services of Salvation Army workers to take charge of definite features of relief work in the flooded areas along the Mississippi river and that their volunteer service in rushing aid in the form of clothing, foodstuffs and sleeping accommodations to the stricken people has been so effective, gave the Salvation Army campaign a new impetus in this city Monday.

"The splendid manner in which the Salvation Army leaped into the breach and went to the rescue of the unfortunate in the flooded area," said General Chairman Preston Arkwright, Monday night, "is proof conclusive to the people of Atlanta that we are indeed all working for a greater service to humanity."

Army Aids Victims.
"Even before Secretary Hoover reached Memphis, from which city relief work is being carried on, Atlanta, through the quick response of the Salvation Army territorial staff was already in the fore in the relief work."

"Tuesday being a semi-holiday there is to be no report meeting of the team workers but they will gather at the chamber of commerce on Wednesday noon at which time I expect the biggest and best report that has yet been made."

Atlanta is with this cause and our only problem is making the necessary personal contacts and the team workers are showing the spirit which indicates that they will make the contacts and lead the way to another successful effort for Atlanta."

The telling work which has been done by the industrial and mercantile division under chairmanship of Charles N. Walker is one of the features which is giving the campaign a substantial boost toward the objective of $50,000.

Reports of the teams which on Monday sent the grand total of the campaign to $22,601 were as follows: Frank Hooper, Jr., $33; H. C. King, $25; J. C. Kennedy, $149.50; Ed F. Bond, no report; P. S. Arkwright, Jr., $425; Thomas I. Miller, $41; W. Tom Winn, $71; A. F. Lively, $25; C. T. Joiner, $70; Clarke Harrison, $136; H. J. Lindig, $131; F. M. Bird, no report; Ensign Salvason, $188.25; Sgt. Suitor, $150; Col. Peacock, $889; Industrial $587.25; special subscriptions, $1,532; total, $5,234; grand total, $22,601.72.

BIG EDUCATION FUND CHECK IS RECEIVED

The state treasury Monday received from the federal government a check for $48,642.25, representing the state's quarterly quota to be applied to federal vocational education.

Some 233 institutions in Georgia will participate in the distribution of this fund, which will be increased to $504,497 from federal funds on hand from last quarter, J. O. Anderson, assistant state treasurer, said.

Schools teaching vocational subjects will receive $38,550.74, and those engaged in civilian rehabilitation work will get $11,704.23, it was said.

Checks will be mailed out this week to the various institutions, Fort E. Land, state superintendent of education, said. The federal government appropriates $194,000 annually for vocational education work in Georgia.

Mr. Land said under an agreement that the fund will be matched by state and local funds.

LAST RITES HELD FOR J. W. SMITH,
BURNING VICTIM
Funeral services for Joseph W. Smith, 34, whose body was found Saturday night with his head and hands charred in front of an open grate fireplace in his apartment, at 110 Ormond street, were held Monday afternoon from Cook's chapel, near Newnan, Ga. Interment was in the churchyard.

Mr. Smith was said to be subject to fainting spells and his death was attributed to a stroke of apoplexy by the coroner's jury Sunday.

He is survived by four brothers, C. H. E. W. B. W., and F. H. Smith, of Atlanta.

MET. STARS INVITED TO ATTEND ERLANGER

Members of the Metropolitan Opera company Monday received invitations from Charles L. Wagner and the management of the Erlanger, theater to visit the new playhouse at such time or times as they may be able to witness the performance by Miss Madge Kennedy, Sidney Blackmer and associates, of "The Mountain Man," which is this week's play.

The invitations were signed by Lewis Hanse, manager of the theater.

Opera Week Means Traffic Jams; Get Insurance Now

Opera week is here—the week of music and festivity.

While you enjoy it, remember that it brings crowded streets and jammed traffic, and that these things are menaces to you.

You can't avoid accidents, no matter how careful you are. But there is one precaution you can take against the peril. You can insure your own income against abrupt halt and the future of your family against want if you should be killed or injured.

The Constitution offers you the cheapest and most efficient insurance protection to be found anywhere in the form of the famous $7,500 travel accident policy issued by the North American Accident Insurance company of Chicago. The reliability of this concern is proved by the fact that already more than $50,000 in cash has been paid on claims of Constitution policy holders.

The cost of the policy is negligible. Any Constitution reader between 15 and 70 years of age may secure it for only $1.25 per year, a fraction of a penny a day, and the protection it affords is wide in its scope.

In case of death resulting from certain specified accidents, payments are provided for sums ranging downward from $7,500, with heavy payments for permanent injuries and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the accidents set forth.

You may be killed or maimed today. A train wreck, a crash of cars, the speeding wheels of recklessly-driven automobiles, burning buildings—all menace you every moment of your life.

Don't take chances. Watch for advertisements appearing regularly in this paper which describe the offer in detail.

This $7,500 travel, $2,000 auto and $1,000 pedestrian accident policy is issued only to subscribers of The Daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of a subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 70 at $1.25 per policy per year.

One who is now taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution or will subscribe for same through carrier in Atlanta or suburbs, through an out-of-town carrier, or dealer, paying for the paper weekly, monthly or otherwise, is a subscriber, and is eligible

Those taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution by mail, either through a postoffice or rural route delivery, and all others subscribing through the twin-word building contest for one year are eligible by paying $1.25 per year per policy above the subscription price.

In sending application for insurance the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation. If beneficiary is desired, full Christian name must be given and the relation of the same to the insured.

DRIVE ON GEORGIA FOREST FIRES OPENS

The physician's practice of prescribing after individual diagnosis has been adopted by the state forestry department in regard to fire risks in various Georgia counties.

Having recently completed a survey of forest fire risks in each county, the department is now engaged in the distribution of literature particularly designed to aid a county in combating its particular risk. State Forester B. M. Lufburrow said Monday.

Counties found to have sustained heavy timber loss through the carelessness of tourists, Mr. Lufburrow said, will receive literature calling tourists' attention to the results of such carelessness in making camp fires or tossing away lighted matches.

ATTENDANCE RECORD WON BY TABERNACLE

Leading all other schools of the Georgia Sunday School association in attendance in Sunday, the Tabernacle Baptist has a total of 1,606 present out of the grand total of 9,191, reported by the association.

The Azusa class of the Tabernacle, with an attendance of 337, headed the list of individual classes.

Berry Schools To Celebrate 25th Birthday

Rome, Ga., April 25.—(AP)—With the largest graduating class in its history and with its first college class, Berry schools will celebrate their 25th anniversary at the commencement exercises to begin Saturday April 30 and continuing through May 3. The graduating class numbers 95 boys and girls.

April 29 will be observed as Anniversary day, and alumni and former teachers from over the country are expected to return for the celebration. One of the outstanding features of Anniversary day, it is planned, will be the historical pageant in which the history of the school since its foundation a quarter of a century ago will be presented.

Dr. W. L. Lingle, of the Union Theological seminary, Richmond, Va., will be the laureate speaker on Sunday, May 1, while Dr. Edwin Mims, of Vanderbilt university, author of "The Advancing South," will deliver the commencement address on May 3.

It was while Miss Martha Berry was conducting Sunday schools in the vicinity of her home, that she conceived the idea of establishing the present Berry schools. In 1902, in a little log cabin near her home, she gathered about her a handful of earnest country boys and girls and there on January 13 of that year, the Berry schools were founded.

From the very first all of the work of the school plant was done by the students themselves and this has been true of the institution down to the present time.

Breakfasts That "Stand By" You

Quaker Oats Supplies
Vigor to Speed up
Your Mornings

NOURISHING breakfasts of well-balanced food are now being widely urged by authorities as an important aid to business success of adults, and physical and mental development of school children.

Some 70% of the day's important work in the business world, it is now known, falls into the four morning hours, 80% of the important school work, in thousands of schools and colleges recently investigated, including Princeton, Harvard, most state universities and public schools, falls in the same period.

To be right mornings, you must eat right food; meaning rightly balanced, complete food.

Thus Quaker Oats—excellently balanced in protein, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamins "B" and the bulk that makes laxatives seldom needed—is the world's dietetic urge. Savory, delicious food that "stands by" you through the morning. No other cereal compares. Always remember that.

Get Quick Quaker—which cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes—or regular Quaker Oats today at your grocer.

Buick Sedans vary in capacity from five to seven passengers, and have two doors or four. Their Fisher-built bodies are famous for their superior coachcraft, distinctive beauty and added comfort.
The model illustrated is the five-passenger sedan, Series 120, $1495, f. o. b. Flint.

Natural grades are not long enough nor severe enough to adequately test the mettle of any motor car.
But by means of this mechanical "hill" Buick cars prove their ability to climb anywhere that wheels can get traction.
Test, not guess, is the basis for Buick design. Buick success is founded on this constant search for the new and better thing—on this accurate, beforehand knowledge of results.
Every Buick owner has a better motor car, because of the tests at the Proving Ground.

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

Yesterday's hand was held by West who had to decide what to do after a declaration by South.

A-7-7;

My answer slip reads:
No. 1. South pass; West should bid one No Trump.
No. 2. South one No Trump; West should double.
No. 3. South one Spade; West should double.
No. 4. South one Heart; West should bid one No Trump.

Reasons in support of these declarations are:
No. 1. West, with a King and a Jack in addition to three Aces, with the ideal 3-3-3-4 No Trump division, and in the most advantageous position for it (after a pass by Dealer), has an obvious No Trump.
No. 2. West has adequate strength to justify an informative double; namely, five high cards that will prob-

ONLY SIX POSTS TO BE CONTESTED

Only six contests out of a possible 19, the smallest in the history of political annals of Atlanta were seen Monday when entry lists were closed by the city democratic committee.

Formal close of lists showed that all four places for membership on the board of education are uncontested, a last-minute entry being John T. Hancock, former president of the board, who offered to succeed W. D. Hoffman.

An unexpected last-minute shake-up came in the councilmanic race in the second ward when J. O. Wood with drew and Cecil G. Allen qualified to oppose Dr. J. E. Turner, incumbent.

Mr. Allen, who is a former council member from the second ward, was defeated last year for the post of alderman from the second by Dr. P. L. Moon, and lost an independent race for the position in the general election last fall.

Two additional entries Monday were Dr. William Cawhern, who qualified to oppose Ellis B. Barrett, incumbent, for the councilmanic position from the fifth, and Homer C. Foster, who offered as an opponent of Raleigh Drennon for council from the ninth.

Other contested races are Charles M. Ford, incumbent, and G. Everett Millican for alderman from the tenth; Councilman A. J. Orme and Hoke O'Kelley for council from the eighth; Earl M. Carnahan, George B. Lyle and O. P. Walton for council from the twelfth for the post held by Leo Suderth, who is not seeking reelection.

Complete List:
Alderman Robert F. Pennington, of the first; Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the fifth; Councilman Sam A. Wardlaw, of the first; Councilman Ben T. Huie, of the third; Councilman John A. White, of the fourth; Councilman Jack C. Hardy, of the sixth; Councilman J. T. Ozburn, of the seventh; Councilman T. Frank Callaway, of the tenth, and Councilman T. M. Smith, of the twelfth.

Following is the complete list:
For board of education:
Fifth ward, J. W. Maddox.
Sixth ward, Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson.
Seventh ward, Dr. M. M. Burns.
Eighth ward, John T. Hancock.
For aldermanic board:
First ward, Robert F. Pennington.
Fifth ward, J. Allen Couch.
Tenth ward, Charles M. Ford and G. Everett Millican.

For council:
First ward, Sam A. Wardlaw.
Second ward, Dr. J. E. Turner and Cecil G. Allen.
Third ward, John A. White.
Fifth ward, Ellis B. Barrett and Dr. William Cawhern.
Sixth ward, Jack C. Hardy.
Seventh ward, J. T. Ozburn.
Eighth ward, A. J. Orme and Hoke O'Kelley.
Ninth ward, Raleigh Drennon and Homer C. Foster.
Tenth ward, T. Frank Callaway.
Eleventh ward, Earl M. Carnahan.
Twelfth ward, George B. Lyle and O. P. Walton.
Twelfth ward, T. M. Smith.

Complete List:
Alderman Robert F. Pennington, of the first; Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the fifth; Councilman Sam A. Wardlaw, of the first; Councilman Ben T. Huie, of the third; Councilman John A. White, of the fourth; Councilman Jack C. Hardy, of the sixth; Councilman J. T. Ozburn, of the seventh; Councilman T. Frank Callaway, of the tenth, and Councilman T. M. Smith, of the twelfth.

Governor's Wife Will Not Agree To Enter Contest

Declining to permit use of her name as candidate for the $5,000 magazine award in recognition of "accomplishments of a national nature," Mrs. Clifford Walker, wife of Georgia's governor and nationally known clubwoman, acknowledged the honor paid her by the Federation of Women's Clubs of the fifth district last week in a letter sent Monday to Mrs. H. C. Stinkley, of College Park, Ga., who presented Mrs. Walker's name.

In part the letter reads:
"Please let me try to thank you for your kind suggestion of my name in connection with the $5,000 prize and for your very generous appraisal of what I have been trying to do.

The record of accomplishments, however, covering one—the health demonstration—in which I was only an interested assistant and by no means the prime mover. In all of them so very much of credit is due to loyal friends and co-workers that I could not possibly think of accepting even an honor in which they did not have a full share.

"Again it would be absolutely out of the question for me to permit the use of my name as a candidate in any way. For the work's sake I could not allow any thought of personal gain or profit to enter into any connection with it. If I do my best everything like that must be kept out of the way. There is so much to be done that we must keep our eyes to the front—personalities in the background."

The award is given the woman who is deemed most preeminent so far as accomplishments of a national nature are concerned. Mrs. Walker's name was brought up unofficially at a meeting of the fifth district club and no official action was possible.

"I am not a candidate for the $5,000 prize and for your very generous appraisal of what I have been trying to do. The record of accomplishments, however, covering one—the health demonstration—in which I was only an interested assistant and by no means the prime mover. Complete Text of President's Address

At the dinner of the United Press, in New York city, at 8 o'clock p. m., on April 25, 1927, President Coolidge spoke as follows:

The gathering and the distribution of news have long since ceased to be a local and individual occupation. They have become identified with great organizations having their representatives in all parts of the country and their publications in every important center. This service could only be performed by a mutual exchange of the most inclusive nature. How rapid and complete has been the growth of these organizations is exemplified by the United Press, which is now celebrating its 20th anniversary. In that short space of time it has spread far and wide over North and South America and become an instrument of both national and international publicity.

This growth and power of the press carries with it great obligations. It is axiomatic that a free press can exist only in a free country. One of the first efforts of all kinds of absolutism is to control the press and the schools as the sources of information and education of the people. Where the press is free, as it is in our country under the guarantees of the national and state constitutions, it has a reciprocal duty of its own to perform toward the administration of the government, of giving true reports to the people of the actions of public officials. To do otherwise would be to establish a petty tyranny of its own. In America, where the press is free, it is not only a source of information but also a source of influence both for good and for harm.

Represents America.

It is natural that the press should represent the character of the government under which it lives and of the people which it serves. I have come to have a profound regard for the American press because it represents America. In the accuracy of its reports, the intelligence of its comments, and the freedom of its actions, I know of no other country where it is surpassed. There ought to be a deeper realization of these conditions on the part of those who are responsible for the conduct of our press which should be reflected in their part in a more intense and genuine Americanism. If you find under some jurisdiction your news would be garbled and unfair, your editorial comments would be dwarfed and prejudiced, your conduct marked as cramped and limited. Because America is what it is, you are what you are. Your own independent and exalted position fully demonstrates that this country is worthy at all times of your service and your support. Whenever any section of our press turns on America and on American institutions, and assumes a foreign attitude, every informed person knows that it has fallen from the high estate which is its common heritage, and becoming longer worthy of regard is destined to defeat and failure. No American can profit by selling his own country for foreign favor.

The policy that our nation is trying to promote throughout the world is one of peace and good will based on a better understanding through justice and fair dealing. It is perfectly apparent that there are three main elements on which we rely to advance this cause. First is the national government as it comes into contact through its duly constituted officers with the governments and people of other countries. I doubt if the belief exists in any informed quarter that this is a belligerent government desirous of oppression or bent on conquest. Our whole history and tradition, the moderation of our military establishment and the general attitude of our people, would altogether disprove any such assumption.

Another very important consideration is that of trade and commercial relations. While a certain number of foreign people come to this country to transact business without intending to make this their permanent home, their number is negligible and any difficulty arising from their presence here is almost unknown. They have practically every advantage and every protection that is afforded to our own citizens. Of their conduct on the whole we have had little blame and much to praise. In the past foreign interests have had investments in this country running into several billions of dollars. Being made at a time when we had sufficient capital to develop our own resources, such investments were most helpful in building our railroads, opening our mines, and supporting our manufacturing. As we have come into the possession of surplus capital we have shown an increasing disposition to extend this same kind of service to other countries. Our people have gone abroad in their investments, their technical skill and commercial ability, to assist in opening up undeveloped countries.

This is the natural play of the forces of civilization. It is the result of natural and commendable enterprise which carries with it the same kind of benefits and advantages to the other people which we ourselves formerly received from abroad. It is the method by which the more prosperous and improved portions of the earth help to bring these advantages to the less fortunately circumstanced. This policy is distinctly one that is in harmony with the law of service. In principle it is the method by which stronger communities minister to weaker communities. But these operations must be carried on with justice and humanity. They do not justify a seizure, which is virtually by force, of the natural resources of foreign countries or the failure to give fair compensation for their labor. A just attitude in these respects by Americans when they engage in enterprises abroad will do very much to determine whether our country is able to maintain the respect and friendship of foreign peoples. Unless this course is pursued, unless this attitude is maintained, all the support which our government could give would fail to make these foreign enterprises successful. Unless they rest on justice and fair dealing they are bound to fail.

Friendly Relations.

A third factor exists which is in long run more important than any other. A condition of understanding and good will among the people of the earth is very largely a state of the public mind. It is almost incon-

Coolidge Grapples World Problems in His Address

(Pertinent extracts from address delivered by President Coolidge last night.)

"In our national intercourse we must hold ourselves up to high standards of justice and equity."
"We should be slow to take offense and quick to grant redress."
"The whole genius of America always calls it to the support of the universal rights of humanity."
"We support the demands of right and justice, but we are equally solicitous to observe the requirements of mercy and compassion."

MEXICO.

"We do not want any controversy with Mexico."
"The Mexican ambassador has recently declared to me that she does not intend to confiscate our property; that she has shown diligence in capturing and punishing those who have murdered our citizens, and expressed the wish, which we so thoroughly entertain, of keeping cordial and friendly relations. With a strong sentiment of the justice, which, I am convinced, animates the people of both countries, it will surely be possible to reach an amicable adjustment."

NICARAGUA.

"We are not making war on Nicaragua any more than a policeman on the street is making war on passers-by."

CHINA.

"We do not wish to pursue any course of aggression against the Chinese people."
"Our actions will at all times be those of a friend solicitous for the well-being of the Chinese people."
"We are there to prevent aggression against our people by any of their disorderly elements."

PRESS.

"No American can profit by selling his own country for foreign favor."
"An American press which has all the privileges which it enjoys under our institutions, and which derives its support from the progress and well-being of our people, ought to be first of all thoroughly American."

conceivable that nations which have maintained friendly relations should at once find themselves at war with each other. Armed conflict arises from a long series of misunderstandings and abuses which gradually flare up on some unexpected provocation. Open hostility does not break out unannounced. It is a growth of long and assiduous cultivation. It can not be doubted that people as a whole desire peace. They can not long secure it if they are constantly harrying feelings of hostility. It is for these reasons that the public press, especially the daily newspapers and weekly periodicals, has such an enormous influence in creating a situation that brings the blessings of peace or the scourge of war.

There are two attitudes that the press may take which distinctly endanger our friendly relations. If they do not bring us to the verge of conflict, they are injurious to the peace. One is the constant criticism and misrepresentation of foreign people. Human nature provides sufficient distrust of all that is alien, so that there is no need of any artificial supply. The world is in far more danger from nations not trusting each other enough than from their trusting each other too much. A press which is given over to a narrow and bigoted nationalism, accompanied by misrepresentations of other countries, not only misinforms the public but produces the reaction of a rankling bitterness abroad. An almost equally harmful attitude is the other extreme. It usually consists of malicious and misleading partisan attacks on the conduct of our own government in its efforts to defend American rights when they are threatened or invaded in foreign countries. Our government has usually been too timid, rather than too active, in supporting the lawful rights of its citizens abroad. That has been so long our established policy that it is rather difficult to conceive it assuming a truculent and arrogant attitude. But when it is proceeding with moderation, attempting by peaceful negotiation to adjust differences, defending the rights of its citizens, and maintaining national dignity, it is usually correct, and it is widely quoted there and when all other arguments have been because it has an interest in them and because it has an obligation toward them. It would seem to be perfectly obvious that if it is wrong to murder and pillage within the confines of the United States, it is equally wrong outside our borders. The fundamental laws of justice are universal in their application. These rights go with the citizen. Whenever he goes beyond the limits of our government must follow him.

Domestic Law.

It is all right to say that when our citizens enter a foreign country they should do so with the understanding that they are to abide by the laws of that country. They should, and they do, and our government would be the last to interfere in the just application of the law of its domicile to our citizens. But this is only a partial statement of the case. The admission of our citizens within their territory is a voluntary act of foreign governments. It is a tacit invitation. When we permit foreigners to come here, and when other countries admit our citizens, we know and they know that such aliens come and go not only under the rights and duties imposed by domestic law, but also under the rights and duties imposed by international law. There is nothing unfair, nothing imperialistic, in this principle. It has been universally adopted and recognized as right and just and is the only reasonable method by which enlightened humanity can safeguard friendly intercourse among the citizens of different nations. This policy has been adopted in furtherance of the humanitarian desire for a universal reign of law.

These principles are involved in some of the difficulties that we have recently been trying to work out with foreign nations, especially with Mexico. We have had claims against that country running over a long series of years, growing out of the death of many of our citizens and the loss of their property, running into hundreds of millions of dollars. A very considerable portion of these cases has been due to revolutionary activities and other forms of public violence. Public order has never been entirely complete in that country. But lately our difficulties have been increased by the enactment of laws by the government itself, which we feel threaten the virtual confiscation of the property of our citizens, even when their holdings are under titles which have been established for scores of years.

Diaz Constitution.

In 1857 Mexico adopted a constitution. In its relation to the protection of acquired property it provided ample security. Under its terms, many of the acquired holdings of our citizens through individual and corporate ownership. During the more than 30 years of President Diaz we were especially encouraged to make investments, to engage in all kinds of development of the natural resources, transportation, and industries. After he was driven from office by revolution much disorder resulted, with presidents following one another in rapid succession. In 1917 a new constitution was adopted with provisions affecting agriculture, mining and oil lands, which we thought threatened the holdings of our nationals with confiscation. Their constitution is not self-enforcing, but requires the promulgation of laws to put it into effect. While this was in process of being brought about a government was established which we did not recognize. In 1920 General Obregon was chosen president and sought recognition. In negotiations for that purpose it was repeatedly pointed out that we feared that the new constitution, although one of its provisions expressly prohibited the enactment of retroactive laws, might be interpreted as retroactive in its effect upon the holdings of our real estate which our people had secured prior to its adoption. We sought assurances from the Mexican government that such was not the case. In order to prevent misunderstanding we sent two commissioners to Mexico City in 1923 to confer upon this subject, and also on the question of our claims with two Mexican commissioners. Charles Beecher Warren and John Barton Payne represented our government. They had a series of conferences and kept written records of their proceedings, in which are set out the recommendation for the appointment of two claims commissions and the understanding that the constitution of 1917 was not to be given retroactive or confiscatory application. These records were only signed and attested by the commissioners and were submitted to the president of Mexico and the president of the United States for their mutual approval, which was given. It was solely because of our understanding secured in this formal way that our property rights would be respected, that recognition of the government of President Obregon was granted on September 3, 1923.

Aided Obregon.

During the winter of 1924 revolutionary activities started in Mexico which it seems probable would have succeeded in displacing President Obregon had not our government furnished him with arms and ammunition largely out of credit and given him the advantage of our moral support. Our help maintained his position. Soon after President Calles came into power he and the Mexican congress proposed laws and regulations which we deemed threatened confiscation of American property. To prevent the appearance of acquiescence we so notified Mexico prior to the passage of such laws. Nevertheless they were passed. We have made further protest against their being put into effect, as they are contrary to our understanding of the conference as a result of which we granted recognition. In the notes which have been received the government of President Calles refuses to be bound by what we thought was the understanding arrived at with President Obregon. We closed the correspondence by notifying the Mexican government that we stood squarely on the understanding made with President Obregon and we expected it not to take any action that would deprive American citizens of their property rights.

Agricultural lands have apparently been seized from time to time for which no compensation has yet been made. While there have been threats to seize oil property, no such seizures have lately been made, and suits are now pending in Mexican courts to restrain such seizures. Former decisions of their courts are relied on to support these suits.

Stripped of all technicalities and involved legal discussion, this is the main difference which our government has with the Mexican government. We do not question their right to take any property, provided they pay fair compensation. With their efforts to secure a division of great estates, so that more of their people may be landowners, we have every sympathy. We have even agreed that our government would accept the bonds of the Mexican government in payment for damages awarded by the commission for land taken for this purpose. Of course, we do not want any controversy with Mexico. We feel every sympathy with her people in their distress and have every desire to assist them. That they welcome conditions under which life and property are secure is shown by the hundreds of thousands of them

Will your skin bear close scrutiny?

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S. You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy."—Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.—(adv.)

WASH away constipation

—that is Nature's way—the way of PLUTO Water

PEOPLE often ask just what is meant by the statement that Pluto washes away constipation. "If the action of Pluto is caused by water," they ask, "why does not common drinking water have the same effect?"

The reason is simple to those versed in the science of medicine. Ordinary water is absorbed before it can reach the intestines. Hence it has no opportunity to wash the digestive tract. Its action is on the kidneys rather than the intestines.

Unlike ordinary water, Pluto Water contains a quantity of minerals exceeding the mineral content of the blood. For that reason, Pluto Water is not absorbed, but passes intact through the intestines.

That is why Pluto washes. It flushes all that's before it, cleaning the system quickly and completely. Pluto social splendor of the entire south Monday night.

GREETING OPERA

Muscle of Pure Pathos.
Long will people remember the singing of Galli-Curci. In the first two acts she is volatile and dynamic in her love and in her sacrifices. The "muscle" speaks of each emotion and this wonderful singer gives it every shade of meaning. In the last two acts the touch of pathos, of sadness and the depths of despair creep into her voice. It is restrained and drooping and she fairly breathes into her notes the breaks of a heart. Pure pathos interpreted in the tones of the thrush.

"La Traviata" possesses every phase of music required to make an opera immortal. There is a true drama, a beautiful love story and sustained action throughout the entire evening. There is even a thrilling moment or so which approaches melodrama and there are at least two scenes as highly dramatic as one of Shakespeare's classic tragedies.

Lawrence Tibbett, with a rich baritone with a purity of tone unsurpassed, carried off some of the high honors. He sang one of the biggest ovals of the evening at the end of the second act and shared with Galli-Curci and Gigli the full honors of the evening. Gigli was in great voice and sang with a fervor and fire.

Skill of Coloratura.
Mme. Galli-Curci's coloratura numbers in the first act were rendered with marvelous skill. Particularly impressive were her "The One of Whom I Dreamed" and "The Round of Pleasure." Her duets with Gigli, her singing in the second act with Tibbett were musically effective. The purest melody, however, came in her great numbers in the first act and in her duet with Tibbett "For From Gay Paris." Tibbett scored his biggest hit in the "Song of Provence."

In the third act, some pretty incidental dances were offered by the members of the corps de ballet with Rita Delaporte in two numbers performed with fine artistry.

"La Traviata" was perfectly staged and the members of the cast gave the stars perfect support.

The crowd was one of the gayest, one of the largest and the most animated that ever attended an opening night of grand opera in Atlanta and if any crowd ever thoroughly enjoyed every note in an opera it was the great assemblage at the auditorium Monday night. Gavagnone, bright colored slacks, flowing robes in ruffs of red, gave a brightness and vivacity which offset to the proper degree the tragic theme of the opera.

Many Curtain Calls.

Many times during the evening the audience forced the stars to take repeated bows, with Mme. Galli-Curci the favored star some of the times. Tibbett, the honored one at other times and then Gigli. The three stars were called back for curtain calls several times after each act. The ovations were spontaneous and showed the keen appreciation the audience had for the work of the stars and for the beautiful music itself.

Verdi's beautiful score in "La Traviata" was perfectly played by the Metropolitan orchestra with Tullio Serafin conducting. The rare perfection of the orchestra added much to the perfect finish of the entire production.

With such a successful premiere for the seventeenth opera season opera lovers will turn today to the big double bill to be offered Tuesday night which will require almost the entire personnel of the Metropolitan to produce. There are twenty-five roles in "Gianni Schicchi" and "L'Amore Dei Tre Re" and predictions will be as pleasing as that of any night during the week. The great De Luca will sing the title role in "Gianni Schicchi" while the other opera will bring Rosa Ponselle, Tibbett and Martinelli in great roles. Louise Hunter, popular star who has played light opera for two seasons in Atlanta, will also appear in "Gianni Schicchi."

Many Notables Seen.

Many prominent people from all parts of the south enjoyed the opening night of opera. Numerous Georgia towns and cities were represented by groups of people here and there while many guests from neighboring states for the first night. The intermissions brought the usually gay chatter to the lobbies, foyers and ante-rooms of the auditorium and the vibrant buzz of conversation by friends and guests.

The boxes forming a horseshoe around the arena of the auditorium were filled with the social leaders of the south. Many of the opera stars who were not in the cast of "La

Galaxy of Bright Stars in Tonight's Double Bill

The Metropolitan Opera company's double bill Tuesday night at the auditorium will bring a distinguished array of artists before an Atlanta audience, twenty-five roles being listed in the two productions. In the top row (left to right) are Giuseppe De Luca, baritone, who sings the title role of "Gianni Schicchi"; Rosa Ponselle, popular soprano, who will sing Fiora in "L'Amore Dei Tre Re"; Giovanni Martinelli, tenor, who sings the role of Avito, the lover, in the same opera; and Nanette Guilford who sings La Cieco in "Gianni Schicchi." Henriette Wakefield, contralto (lower left), sings the part of an old woman, and Lawrence Tibbett, baritone (lower right), sings the role of Manfredo, the husband of Fiora, in "L'Amore Dei Tre Re."

"La Traviata" set with Atlanta hosts and lent color and brilliance to the scene. One note of sadness was expressed by the stars and this was over the absence of Colonel William Lawson "Pat" late head of the Atlanta Music Festival association, whose pioneer work in establishing grand opera on a permanent basis in Atlanta has been appreciated for more than a decade by the Atlanta people. Another regular visitor on opening nights who was not present Monday for the first time in the history of the local season of opera, was Dr. E. L. Connally. Long before the time for the curtain to rise on the first act of the first opera of the 1927 season great crowds began to stream toward the auditorium. Lobbies of local hotels presented a bright and gay effect as colorful throngs moved out, bound for the first opera, and the streets near the auditorium were well packed with people at least half an hour before the time for the performance.

Gay Crowd Present.

The steady moving crowd was one dressed in the height of the latest modes and a sheen of brilliance over- spread the floors as the people began to settle in their seats for the 1927 inaugural. Colorful crowds of notables began to fill the boxes and on a perfect sea of animated faces turned to the huge stage of the vast auditorium as the first notes of the orchestra signified that the performance was about to begin. There was a darkening of lights, a cessation of conversation, the orchestra burst forth at the call of the baton of Conductor Tullio Serafin and the 17th season of opera was under way.

Verdi's "La Traviata" was a happy selection for the opening night. Its high dramatic interest, added to the appealing score, and with Galli-Curci singing the great part of Violetta, a role which demands the ablest coloratura soprano to handle effectively, made the opera particularly fitting for the bright first night crowd. Based on Alexander Dumas' "Camille," it provided in the opening scene a brightness and gaiety which offset the tragedy of the last part of the opera and was a vehicle which gave Metropolitan stars innumerable opportunities to display their wonderful talent and training as singers. Besides Mme. Galli-Curci, Gigli and Tibbett, there were good parts for Minnie Ezner and Grace Anthony, soprano; Giordano Patrino, tenor; Vincenzo Reschiglian, baritone, and Paolo Anauian, basso.

Artists in Fine Spirits.

Before the performance Monday night Edward Ziegler, assistant general manager, who has charge of the Metropolitan Opera company during the Atlanta engagement, declared that all the stars in the company, members of the ballet, musicians and others connected with the organization were eager to give Atlanta one of her most successful opera seasons this year. Mr. Ziegler declared that the company wants to christen the first year of the opera here under direction of H. M. Atkinson, as president of the Atlanta Music Festival association, with a success, as all members appreciate the tireless work he has done for the association and also appreciate the business sacrifice he has made to head the association.

Members of the corps de ballet arrived early Monday morning on a special train and this train brought also musicians, stage crews and technical directors. The busiest place in Atlanta soon after the arrival of the train was the big stage of the auditorium where the crews were placing the massive scenery and the innumerable lighting effects to be used in staging the nine operas here.

Ticket sales for the remaining operas of the engagement held up steadily through Monday. The box office was open at the Cable Piano company until 5 o'clock and it was then moved to the auditorium and reopened at 6 o'clock. It was announced that tickets will remain on sale every day during the engagement at the Cable Piano company until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

While a great and highly pleased crowd turned out for "La Traviata," indications pointed to strong support for all the operas on this year's bill. Tuesday night the big double bill of "Gianni Schicchi," a grand opera with a light theme, and "L'Amore Dei Tre Re," a heavier tragedy, will be offered. The first is a composition of Giacomo Puccini, and the other by Italo Montemezzi. Vincenzo Bellizzi is scheduled to conduct the first and Tullio Serafin will be back on the job for his second appearance with the second opera.

Puccini's massive "Turandot," one of the most stupendous productions ever offered by the Metropolitan company, will be sung Wednesday night. It will be sung in Italian and Serafin is billed to wave the baton in this opera.

The double bill tonight will bring into action more stars than will be heard at any one night during the local engagement. The list of the two casts reads almost like a roster of the Metropolitan company.

who are coming to the United States, where, through their industry, they thrive and prosper. Under these conditions small land holdings would develop in Mexico as they have developed here. Those of her citizens who preferred to seek employment in industry, like many of our own people, would have an abundant opportunity in their own country. Instead of desiring to pursue an aggressive or a "cold" war in any oppression, we are endeavoring through the most friendly offices to demonstrate to their government that their attitude in relation to property will not only result in the economic disadvantage of their own people, but will greatly impair their friendly relations with other interested nations.

It is a cardinal principle of law that private property should not be taken without fair compensation. This principle is declared in our national constitution and in those of all our states. I know of no written constitution that does not contain a similar provision. Under the constitution of 1917, and by-laws and regulations for carrying it into effect, we feel that Mexico is threatening to disregard this great elementary principle by undertaking a retroactive application of their constitution to property of our citizens acquired long before their constitution was adopted.

Arbitration.

The senate recently passed a resolution supporting the protection of American life and property and suggesting resort to arbitration. We have at present two commissions of arbitration with Mexico, and the principle of arbitration has always been strongly advocated by our government. Everybody favors arbitration when the question at issue is arbitrable. Under the present circumstances I can see grave difficulties in formulating a question which the two governments would agree to submit to such a tribunal. The principle that property is not to be confiscated and the duty of that government to protect it are so well established that it is doubtful if they should be permitted to be questioned. Very likely Mexico would feel that the right to make a constitution and pass laws is a privilege of her sovereignty which she could not permit to be brought into question. It has therefore seemed that we are more likely to secure an adjustment through negotiation. I am glad to report that the Mexican ambassador has recently declared to me that she does not intend to confiscate our property, that she has shown goodwill in capturing and punishing those who have murdered our citizens, and expressed the wish, which we so thoroughly entertain, of keeping cordial and friendly relations. With a strong sentiment of this nature, which I am convinced, animates the people of both countries, it will surely be possible to reach an amicable adjustment. Our two peoples ought so to conduct themselves that there will never be any interference with our ancient ties of friendship.

Moral Responsibility.

Toward the governments of countries which we have recognized this side of the Panama canal we feel a moral responsibility that does not attach to other nations. We wish them to feel that our recognition is of real value to them and that they can count on such support as we can lawfully give when they are beset with difficulties. We have undertaken to disseminate by the congress which appeared to us and to other Central American countries to have a constitutional title and we therefore recognized him. As the disorders continued, on his representation that he was unable to protect American lives and property, I sent a force of marines for that purpose. Their presence has undoubtedly prevented the larger towns from being seized and confined the fighting for the most to uninhabited areas. We have sold arms and ammunition, as we have the case of Mexico, to the Nicaraguan government. The revolutionary forces appear to have received arms and ammunition from some source in Mexico. With a hope that we might be furnished with information which would better enable us to deal with the situation, I have sent Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of war, to that country. Meanwhile, it is reported that the government forces have been apparently successful in driving the revolutionists from the field.

In addition to the private property of our citizens, which is employed in lumber and agricultural operations, our government has secured the right to construct a canal and establish a naval base, for which it paid $3,000,000. Contrary to the general impression, there are no oil properties in this country. Nevertheless, I have seen cartoons that pictured it as filled with oil derricks. Our country consumes vast quantities of oil and gasoline in its use of automobiles, gas engines, and oil-burning furnaces. If these products are to be kept within a reasonable price, which is very important to a great body of our citizens, our people who go abroad to develop new fields and to increase the supply ought to have the encouragement and support of our government. We are not making war on Nicaragua any more than a policeman on the street is making war on passersby. We are there to protect our citizens and their property from being destroyed by war and to lend every encouragement we can to the restoration of peace. While the destruction of life and property has been serious enough, had it not been for the presence of our forces it would undoubtedly have been much worse.

Moral Responsibility.

Toward the governments of countries which we have recognized this side of the Panama canal we feel a moral responsibility that does not attach to other nations. We wish them to feel that our recognition is of real value to them and that they can count on such support as we can lawfully give when they are beset with difficulties. We have undertaken to dis-

Moral Responsibility.

Toward the governments of countries which we have recognized this side of the Panama canal we feel a moral responsibility that does not attach to other nations. We wish them to feel that our recognition is of real value to them and that they can count on such support as we can lawfully give when they are beset with difficulties. We have undertaken to dis-

Moral Responsibility.

Our relationship to Nicaragua I have set out in detail in a message to the congress. For a dozen years we kept a force of marines in that country at the earnest solicitation of its government. During this time the people were peaceful, orderly and prosperous, and their national debt was greatly reduced. Almost at once after I withdrew the marines revolution was started. Finally a presidencountries that are near at hand and where we have large and peculiar interests.

Another important problem in our foreign intercourse relates to China. That country is undergoing a revolutionary convulsion. It is broken up into several separate parts, each claiming to represent a government, none of which we have recognized. Our main difficulty here is the protection of the life and property of our citizens. We have many missionaries there and some commercial establishments. We have nothing in the way of concessions. We have never occupied any territory. Our citizens are being concentrated in ports where we can protect them and remove them. It is solely for this purpose that our warships and marines are in that territory.

While this process was going on the unfortunate incident arose at Nanking. One of our citizens was murdered, another was wounded, and the consulate was violated, and when the house in which our people had taken refuge was surrounded and they were actually under fire it became necessary for one of our ships, and one of the British ships in the harbor, to lay down a barrage, to drive away the soldiers and the mob who were making the attack and to enable our citizens to reach a place of safety on our ships in the river. We presented with the other powers who had suffered like attacks ideologic mass of protest, to which reply has been made, which although conciliatory in tone and to a certain degree responsive, leaves the final disposition being concentrated in ports where we can protect them and remove them. It is solely for this purpose that our warships and marines are in that territory.

Saw It Coming.

Weeks ago I saw this situation developing and sent a suggestion to the contending factions that they exclude the foreign quarters of the city of Shanghai from the area of military operations. This they failed to do, making the dispatch of our forces necessary. In a public statement issued by our secretary of state on the 27th of January we indicated that we were ready to negotiate a treaty giving China complete tariff autonomy and a bona fide complete tariff autonomy and to negotiate a treaty of extraterritorial rights as soon as China is prepared to give protection to American citizens and their property. The friendship of America and China has become proverbial. We feel her the deepest sympathy in these times of her distress. We have no disposition to do otherwise than to assist and encourage every legitimate aspiration for freedom, for unity, for the establishment of a national spirit, and the realization of a republican form of government. In the turmoil and strife of the present time we realize fully that the forces may be let loose temporarily beyond their power to control, which may do injury to American nationals. It is to guard against that contingency that our forces are in Chinese waters and to do what China itself would do if peace prevailed. We do not wish to pursue any course of aggression against the Chinese people. We are there to prevent aggression against our people by any of their disorderly elements. Ultimately the turmoil will quiet down and some form of order will emerge, which will no doubt be prepared to make adequate settlement for any wrongs we have suffered. We shall, of course, make the fullest sympathy in these times of her distress. Sophy Tancred's Husbands

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER.

SYNOPSIS.
Sophy and Piers Tancred have lately taken the Villa Mona at Bordighera on the Italian Riviera. Sophy learns that her former husband, Alan Brooke, the sculptor, is living nearby and that they are to meet at dinner that night. She is afraid of her husband's jealousy and, since he thought she was a widow when he married her, she goes to Brooke's studio to warn him against telling Piers that they had been married. Alan tells Sophy that his housekeeper, Cristina, is really his wife and they have a little son. Willie Moppet, a male gossip of Bordighera, interrupts them and Sophy flies back to the Villa Mona in fear.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

Mother and Son.

Willie said nothing about that check as he walked back from Castello Doblieri with Lilla Brant later in the day. Indeed, they scarcely touched upon the subject of high finance at all, but they talked a great deal about Sophy, after Alan's Italian wife had been reviewed.

"Why doesn't Mrs. Tancred come to the hotel dances?" Willie asked. "Can't you guess?"

"O, I suppose I can. The husband's objects."

"I think he looks her in every night," Lilla said. "I know he goes to the casino, himself."

"What a lark if we could snare her out to the ball masque," Willie mused. "Even if Tancred is there to make him drunk."

"I think I could look after Piers without that," Lilla said thoughtfully. "It wouldn't be as easy as you imagine to make him drunk."

They parted at Lilla's pension and then Willie Moppet shot two the Via Regina Margherita at a rapid pace and caught a train bound for Ventimiglia. At this hour of the day no one of his acquaintances who mattered would be going in that direction. The train was re-wa-vin vorkmen, and the elegant Mr. Moppet found a place with difficulty on the rear platform. When he dropped off at the Vallecrosia valley he was smelling faintly of garlic.

He walked rapidly again in the falling light and about a quarter of a mile up the valley turned in at a cottage gate. It was a small cottage half smothered in roses and bougainvillea, and there was a little pink shaded lamp in the one window which faced the road.

Somewhere at the back of the cottage a dog set up a barking, but subsided into mutters when a girl's voice made him be quiet. Willie Moppet was uncertain for a brief moment. Should he go around to the rear and encounter the owner of the voice without delay? His decision, however, was otherwise. Perhaps prudence deterred him, or there might have been other reasons.

He tapped lightly on the half-brown door, turned the handle and walked into the room of the pink-shaded lamp.

Here, where he expected to find her, an elderly woman lay stretched on a couch, supported by many cushions and covered with an old-fashioned shawl's hair shawl. She was long thin woman, who in a way showed resemblances to Willie Moppet, but it would scarcely seem that she was of his class. One would place her immediately as a retired governess of the old school, consciously prim and neatly clad in black laced cashmere with a bit of lace at the collar fastened by a cameo. Her hair brushed back severely and screwed what was left of her hair into a compact little knot. One would hazard a likely guess that she was a lady's maid by profession, now come to the end of her work and reaping the just reward of long and faithful service.

At Willie's approach, the old woman smiled, and it was then that he remembered between them became marked to the point where their close relationship might be assured. "Hello, ma," he said cheerfully, bending down and kissing her cheek. "How are you feeling today?"

"Much better, my dear," the woman replied. "I was beginning to think you wouldn't come—the storm and all. But of course I knew you would."

Willie glanced around the room as though looking for something which ought to be there, then he drew a rush-bottomed chair to the couch and seated himself.

"Do smoke, Willie. I know you like it and it doesn't bother me a bit," the old woman urged. Pink spots showed in her cheeks and her eyes had the look of one momentarily dazzled.

"I don't want to smoke," Willie Moppet said. He took one of her hands, a knotted, dark-veined hand, and stroked it tenderly. "Cissy's in the garden," the woman informed him. "She's been rather busy today. The char-woman didn't come this morning and Cissy did the washing herself, and then the scum kept her from hanging the things out until late. Now tell me what you've been doing and about all your fine friends. You know how I love to hear everything about that pretty Mrs. Tancred, Willie?"

Willie Moppet crossed his knees, tipped the old chair back a little and plunged into gossiping narrative, producing a style which if properly directed would have made a name for him as a social satirist.

From the back garden, there came the trill of a clear soprano voice singing an Italian music-hall song with a hint of wicked abandon that caused a delicious shiver to run down his spine. Once or twice he broke off the glamorous tale of his high adventures to listen, but the old woman urged him on. She showed not only keen interest in the characters he dangled for her inspection, but some previous acquaintance with them and their foibles. If he halted, she could prompt him and she got to show in to the ringle a misstatement she corrected him. "O, it couldn't have been an Lewis who said that," she protested. "Of course not," Willie agreed. "I meant Col. Drumm. It was the major who ultimately found the lost ball, though, and then you should have heard what the colonel said! His temper flares up so easily, poor old gentleman."

"I suppose Ellen Mavey is still with the Princess Doblieri?" the old woman asked after Willie had stopped again to listen to the voice in the garden.

"O, yes. She's a bitter weed," Willie said. "She always was. I must have been thirty years ago we were in service together at Stellingford Hall—Ellen only a housemaid, then—but she was just the same. Crossed in love, I remember. She thought she was doing a fine thing for herself when she went to the princess as lady's maid, but there she is—still at it. No pension for her, nor likely to be."

Willie agreed that it wasn't at all likely. "Good gracious!" the old woman creaked. "Wouldn't Ellen Mavey's eyes pop out if she knew that—h—she opened the door to you it was my son she was to show in to the ringle. Not that I want her to know. I wouldn't have it for worlds."

Willie Moppet got up and glanced restlessly at the door, and reading his thought the invalid said: "O, Cissy in if you want her. (She's waiting for you to come out. You may be bound she knows you e here." There was a note of covert in this which Willie, sensitively quick, took up.

"Don't you like Cissy?" he asked. "Doesn't she look after you properly?"

"O, yes, she does well enough, but she wasn't brought up to service. And then of course her whole mind's set on her singing. This French teacher she ran across down here has put ideas into her head."

"She's got a lovely voice," Willie said rebukingly. "Properly trained she'd go far. . . . To change the subject, ma, there's something I want to ask you. It's been in my mind for a long me, for years, but somehow I never got around to it. When you were so ill last summer I thought to myself if you were to die—well, perhaps I'd never know. Are you sure Cissy won't come in?"

"Not unless she's called," the old woman set up and stared fixedly at her son. Above the lace of her collar a corded vein leapt into prominence and throbbed painfully. Willie took her hands and held them with great tenderness. "You needn't be afraid," he said. "I'll understand. It happened a long time ago and I know you must have been very pretty. There's only one thing I'm afraid of. I wouldn't be pleased to hear that my father was a common sort of hound, because I've sort of got it into my head that he was a somebody," ma."

Galli-Curci in 'La Traviata' Charms Colorful Audience at Auditorium

Lending the charm of their presence and augmenting the beauty of the opera audience which assembled Monday evening to hear "La Traviata" were three of the city's most attractive young matrons, including, from left to right, Mrs. William Candler, Mrs. Jackson Dick and Mrs. Louis H. Beall. Mrs. Dick is the lovely daughter of Harry M. Atkinson, president of the Atlanta Music Festival association, and Mrs. Atkinson. Mrs. Beall is a recent acquisition to Atlanta society, having moved to the city from Chicago during the past year. Photo of Mrs. Candler by the Morrell studio; photos of Mrs. Dick and Mrs. Beall by Brubaker's studio.

Southern society bowed in sublime rapture to the goddess of music, enthroned Monday evening on the stage of the great auditorium, when the seventeenth season of grand opera opened with a superb presentation of "La Traviata."

Breathless excitement which invariably prevails on both sides of the footlights on the opening evening of the season foretold something of the silent greetings of pleasure and anticipation exchanged between the artists and the audience at the parting of the great red curtain, this cordially born of many seasons of basking in each other's presence, both socially and musically.

Written by Verdi at the height of his creative genius, "La Traviata" furnished a splendid vehicle for the group of excellent voices cast in the roles. Alexander Dumas' "La Dame aux Camélias," on which the opera is based, is familiar to everyone in its dramatic form as "Camille," and the theme of misguided love, misunderstanding and misfortune inspired Verdi to the finest love music of his entire operatic career.

Galli-Curci Returns

The performance was distinguished by the return in the leading role of the famous coloratura-soprano, Mme. Galli-Curci, who has not been heard in opera in Atlanta for several years. Supported by the ever-popular Gigli, another Atlanta favorite, who sang the part of Alfredo, and Bassioli, who recalled to mind his very favorable impression of last year in the role of Germont, the production lacked nothing, either in perfection of finish or in dramatic melody.

The part of Violetta is one of Galli-Curci's best-loved roles, allowing as it does of wonderful opportunity for the voice in both the coloratura and lyric-dramatic. Her vocal charm is always manifest in her singing, and her character portrayal in Monday evening's performance marked her as an actress of great ability.

Outstanding Opera Gems

One of the outstanding gems of the opera was the duet sung by Alfredo (Gigli) and his father, Germont (Bassioli) called "Thy Home in Fair Provence."

One of the most appealing of all arias, in which Violetta reached brilliant heights, was "The One of Whom I Dreamed," sung as Alfredo bids her a tender farewell at the close of the first act. The third act provided a beautiful ballet, starring the lovely Rita de Leporte and the Metropolitan corps de ballet.

By no means the least deserving of praise for the evening's production was Tullio Serafin, who wielded his baton in the conductor's box with the same perfection and complete understanding of the score which characterized "La Traviata" throughout.

The beauty of the music, the touching power of the dramatic, tragic story moved the vast audience to frantic enthusiasm, recalling the frenzied appreciation with which it was received in Venice back in 1856, just one short year after its initial presentation, which resulted in complete failure.

Boxes Attract Attention

During intermission the attention of the audience was focussed upon the galaxy of operatic and social stars occupying the boxes, made colorful by the resplendently gowned women, their costumes glittering with rhinestones and crystals, their shapely throats encircled with strands of rare pearls and diamond necklaces, while gorgeous metal brocade coats, richly embroidered Spanish shawls, and chiffon wraps matched the costumes of the beautiful women gracing the boxes, which were draped in green and white bunting edged with fringe. Varicolored ostrich feather fans of very generous dimensions waved in rhythmic unison adding spectacular effect to this auspicious occasion marking the opening of the seventeenth season of grand opera in Atlanta. Mrs. Harry M. Atkinson, charming official hostess of opera week, was gowned in lavender chiffon embroidered in sequins, and with it she wore a lavender chiffon coat lined with flesh-colored chiffon trimmed with ostrich. H. M. Atkinson, general president of the Atlanta Music Festival association, occupied the chair behind her, doubtless conversing with their guests upon the all-absorbing subject of music. Lovely little Lucrezia Bori, the "Met's" charming prima donna, was invited to adorn the box of Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, a white chiffon costume bringing into vivid effect her exotic beauty. Louise Hunter, whom Atlantans hold in affectionate regard, smiled and chatted with charming animation, wearing a coral pink chiffon gown, deep fringe outlining the décolleté bodice and a delicate point on the skirt. Her mother, Mrs. Ella Hunter, and her adoring companion, was dressed in black chiffon scintillating with crystals. The distinguished-looking and blonde Mrs. Norwood Hastie, of Charleston, S. C., visiting Mrs. Henry W. Davis, who has made many friends here, because like so many women of aristocratic birth, she is entirely free from affectation, wore a Parisian model of green and silver brocade, while the presence of Mrs. Alexander Revell, of Chicago, was a source of interesting comment, and she was handsomely gowned in orange-colored chiffon, richly embroidered in crystal bead design.

Rosa Ponselle's stately beauty was enhanced by a gorgeous gown of white silver cloth, glittering in rhinestones, regally enveloped in a superb coat of ermine. Her lustrous back hair was parted in the middle and worn in the becomingly severe arrangement Ponselle always affects. She chatted with the gracious informality during the social reconnoitering with the many friends made during former seasons, for she is greatly loved by opera-goers.

White chiffon gowns sparkling in iridescent and crystal embroidery, accentuated the loveliness of Mrs. George Armstrong and her daughter, Miss Lucy Armstrong, prominent residents of Savannah society, foremost among the season's box-holders, while their guest, Mrs. Norton Davis, of Ocala, Fla., was dressed in red chiffon, glittering with crystal beads. Likewise gaining considerable attention were two former Atlantans, Mrs. Leigh Palmer, of Washington, D. C., a handsome figure wearing an imported model of shutter green crepe lavishly embroidered in pearls and crystals, and Mrs. Howard Tucker, of Washington, D. C., greatly favoring her handsome mother, who was costumed in black lace veiling flesh chiffon, and they seemed to thoroughly enjoy the cordial welcome extended by their intimate friends. Virginia was represented by Mrs. Meriwether Jones, of Richmond, whose pink satin gown was hand-painted in floral design. Pretty Mrs. Jack McFarlin, of Quincy, Fla., who so closely resembles her cousin, Mrs. Harrison Jones, whom she is visiting, wore over her flesh-colored evening gown a Spanish shawl flowered in cold blue embroidery. Two lovely Mrs.

CAPITAL CITY CLUB SUPPER-DANCE FOLLOWS "LA TRAVIATA"

Society Mingles With Stars At Initial Social Event

No less brilliant than the audience which greeted the opening curtain of "Traviata" Monday evening was the assemblage of southern society gathered at the Capital City club immediately following the performance to pay homage socially to the galaxy of Metropolitan stars who were special honor guests of the occasion.

The officers and directors of the club were hosts at the supper-dance which officially launched the program of gay opera festivities, presaging one of the most brilliant social seasons ever witnessed in Atlanta. Sharing honors with the golden-throated songbirds were also the directors and officers of the Metropolitan company and directors of the Atlanta Music Festival association and their wives.

Transformed into a bower of springtime loveliness, the ballroom and salons of the club presented a scene of colorful beauty. Demanding the attention of all eyes and beggaring description was the large table at which the honor guests were seated. Banked with flowers in a multitude of shades, the floral setting formed a fitting complement to the fairest beauty of the land, enhanced by the master's touch in costumes and jewels. Seven graceful French baskets overflowing with royal purple fleur de lis, yellow daisies, pink roses, valley lilies, combined with long sprays of maiden hair ferns, ranged the length of the long table, graduating in size, the largest one gracing the center. The smaller tables, seating congenial groups for supper which was served at midnight, were adorned with Marie Antoinette baskets filled with masses of pink Killarney roses, sprays of the lovely flowers twining the graceful handles.

Official Hosts.

The official host and hostess of the affair were president of the club and his charming wife, Mr. and Mrs. E. Rivers. They were assisted by the directors and their wives, including Mr. and Mrs. William T. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw, Mr. and Mrs. Macon Martin, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Martin, Baxter Maddox and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Parker.

The directors of the Atlanta Music Festival association and their wives, who were seated at the table with the artists, were Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Candler, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nevin, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Krieger, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hirsch and Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Martin.

Distinguished Guests.

The past presidents of the Capital City club and their wives, who formed a distinguished group also seated with the artists, were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Howell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Elkin, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Maddox, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Inman, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Urie S. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Miss Preston Weds N. G. A. C. Cadet In Clayton, Ala.

Dahlonega, Ga., April 25.—(Special.)—An air of intense excitement pervades the campus of N. G. A. C. college today as a result of the announcement that J. V. Talley, a cadet here, and Miss Edwina Preston, a junior at Andrews college, Cuthbert, Ga., were married yesterday. Immediately following a barn dance Saturday evening Mr. Talley, accompanied by an intimate friend, left Dahlonega for parts unknown. After an all-night ride they reached Cuthbert and were shortly on their way across the state line into Alabama, where they were married by the probate judge residing at Clayton.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple set sail for Dahlonega. A short stop was made in Columbus, where their parents were notified by wire of the marriage. They reached Dahlonega at an early hour Monday morning.

Mr. Talley is the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Preston, of Douglas, Ga. She was one of the most popular students at Andrews.

Mr. Talley is the son of Dr. J. V. Talley, of Nashville, Ga. He is a sophomore and is very active in school life as an athlete and musician. When questioned regarding their plans for the immediate future, the couple announced that they would make their home in Dahlonega, and that Mr. Talley would continue his school work.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin B. Cates had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. John Horne, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. John Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Pugh, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cone and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gray, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Beaudry entertained Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Groves and Miss Lillian Williamson.

Visitors Honored.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Boniques entertained a group of out-of-town friends.

Double Bill by Metropolitan Gives Impetus To Opera Week

Giving impetus to the whirl of operas will be the double bill which will be presented this evening at the auditorium by the Metropolitan Opera company. Puccini's humorous little one-act operetta will precede the poetic "L'Amore del Tre Re." The occasion will mark the first appearance in Atlanta of Vincenzo Bellezza, the new conductor with the Met, who will wield the baton for the operetta. Tullio Serafin, the premiere conductor, is expected to give one of the finest portrayals of the week in his interpretation of the musically exacting score of "L'Amore del Tre Re."

Decorations day dawned for the celebration of the south's most cherished and revered traditions and for honoring the thinning line of the heroes of the gray. For a moment the festive gaieties attendant upon the opera season will be forgotten while Atlanta pays tribute to the memory of southern heroes who have departed and honor to those who are left to review the days of '61 and '65.

Heroes Honored

Memorial exercises will be held at the courthouse in Decatur this morning at 10 o'clock, at which the Agnes Lee chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will award medals to school children in a memorial essay contest. Crosses of service will be awarded to veterans at this time. At the service at the monument in the center of the town in College Park, crosses of honor will be awarded to both Confederate and world war veterans.

Early in the day the luncheon of Mrs. Frank Ellis at her home on Peachtree circle will mark one of the prettiest of the formal functions of the week. Mrs. Adelaide Howell Bower will honor her pretty little school-girl niece, Miss Adelaide Howell, entertaining at the Biltmore tea-dance for members of the younger contingent.

Supper Parties Given

Hundreds of after-opera parties will be given at local clubs and hotels following "L'Amore del Tre Re." Many reservations have been made at the Piedmont Driving club and the Atlanta Biltmore, while many sedate opera guests will make a quick change from formal to fancy dress "kid clothes" in order to participate in the unique stunts to be staged by the Theta Beta Pi fraternity of Georgia Tech, who are hosts from 10 to 2 o'clock at the Druid Hills Golf club.

Opera Notes and Sidelights

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
As tenors, sopranos, basses, baritone and contraltos hit high notes and low notes around the Biltmore hotel Monday, a bright and colorful scene was set on the terrace of the grand old hotel, where the Metropolitan Grand Opera company and their followings of Atlanta admirers mingled in informal receptions.

The stars were playful and full of fun and many a joke was told and many a prank was played during the afternoon as the singers awaited the christening of the local season.

The Biltmore hotel staff, headed by Holland Jenkins and W. H. Royer, was busy all day looking after the needs of the singers and preparing for the entertainment of the unusually large number of visitors here for the opera season.

Mario Basola, whose great work opera and is registered at the Biltmore hotel.

Mrs. Harry Harmon is in Asheville, N. C., where she is visiting her grandchild, Harry Strickland, during the absence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rawson, who are in New York.

Mrs. Walter E. Robbins has returned to her home in West Point after a several days' visit with her niece, Miss Fanchon Armstrong, Pontchartrain apartment.

Mrs. Spencer A. Kirkland and little daughter, Virginia, are at Wesley Memorial hospital where they are recuperating from tonsil operations.

Mrs. George S. Armstrong, Miss Lucy Armstrong, of Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. Norton Davis, of Ocala, Fla., are prominent visitors at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.

A group of visitors from North Carolina who are at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel for opera week are: Mrs. Ora T. Henderson and Miss Martha Henderson, Mrs. B. T. Shaw, Mrs. H. M. McAben, Mrs. H. N. Pharr, of Charlotte, and Mrs. J. T. McKee, of Laurinburg.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Delaplane, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., are at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.

Soldier's Speech to Daughters Mrs. Lamar's Message Conveys

Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, of Macon, past president of the Georgia division, brings forward in her message, "What the Confederate Soldier Says to the Daughters of the Confederacy," saying:

"In Mary Johnston's book, 'The 27 years, will arrive from New York Wednesday. He is the oldest member in years of service."

Miss Rita Deleporte, solo dancer, has risen rapidly in the ranks of the Metropolitan Opera company. She is quite young, quite pretty, quite red-headed and has been solo dancer with the company for four years. She is a New York girl and obtained her training in the Metropolitan Opera Company School of Dancing under the direction of Miss Rosina Galla.

Nanette Guilford has her mother with her on the Atlanta trip. Her mother is as young looking as the daughter and was mistaken for the daughter several times Monday. Which is some compliment to the looks of the mother, considering that daughter is barely old enough to be a grand opera star.

Long Poll, she describes with power and pathos, the march of Jackson's men through the Shenandoah valley, adding: 'By the side of every Confederate soldier there marched, invisible, a woman soldier, too.' Today by the side of every Daughter of the Confederacy there marches, invisible a soldier of the Confederacy and he is saying to her: 'Watch your step! Keep the faith! Do nothing out of harmony with the principle of state sovereignty, for which we are in gray 'faded our lives! Support no movement, advocate no measure that shall imperil the right of the state to regulate its own affairs.'

"A good Confederate is a good American! The more loyal to that for which the Stars and Bars were loved the stronger will be devotion to the Stars and Stripes. Out of the ashes of the conflict between brothers has arisen a new union that must maintain a united front and eternal vigilance against the advocates of bolshevism, socialism and bloodred enemies."

NOT so many years ago,

LIVED SOME men,

WHO knew how to

TOUCH THE human heart.

WE HAVE not had so

MANY of them lately.

THIS week,

IN ATLANTA,

WE shall behold,

GRAND opera,

THERE will be,

STARS.

WHO ALSO know,

HOW TO touch,

THE HUMAN heart.

HERE in Atlanta,

WE also know,

SOMETHING of HUMAN hearts.

YOU will see in

THE foyer as you

ENTER to where the STARS shine.

ANOTHER star.

ON THE opera firmament,

THIS star,

ROSE in Atlanta,

SWEET as the heart,

OF honeysuckle,

PURE as the fruit on

MOUNT Parnassus,

CHOSEN by Hymen,

WHO brings love to fruition,

LURED by vowels late,

BEAUTY'S ways,

TOUCHING with celestial,

FINGERS the secret,

PLACES of the heart,

GIVING surcease to

THE day's ills,

BRINGING joy to the

PALATE and wholesome,

DELIGHT to the

INMOST being,

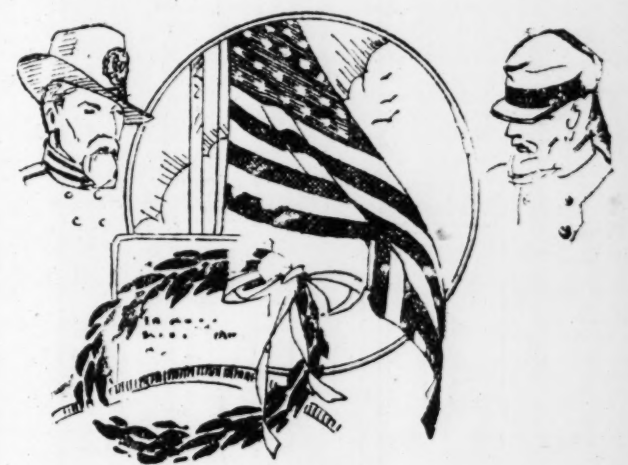

THE GRAND star,

THAT ROSE in Atlanta,

SOPHIE Mae,

I THANK you.

Today We Honor Our Beloved "Old Soldiers"

Sixty-six years ago, the Soldiers of the South became the Soldiers of the Confederacy. Their uniforms were gray, their spirits flaming. Four years later they became our Confederate Veterans.

Life has given them gray hair which is the uniform we love for the old age we can revere. They are still our soldiers in gray. Our soldiers who—sixty-two years ago—laid down their swords to rescue a smoking land.

Two years later M. RICH & BROS. joined the new veterans in their new task. Shoulder to shoulder, we have stood with these first rebuilders of the South. Next week we celebrate our 60th birthday. Every one of the sixty years is charged with regard for the soldiers who knew how to be daring in war and resolute in peace.

MANAGERS TO SHARE CHAIN STORE PROFITS

Comedy at Forsyth Wins New Laurels for Company

A recent change in the corporate structure of the J. C. Penney company, which will provide for still greater expansion of its activities here and in foreign countries, was an-

According to the new plan, the store managers will share in the profits of the general business of the entire system, as well as the profits of the individual stores, which number 773, covering every state in the union with the exception of Florida and Delaware.

Previous classified common stock, which represented interest in individual stores, has been exchanged for common stock and 6 per cent preferred stock in the J. C. Penney company.

Of an authorized issue of $10,000,000 in classified common stock, $8,520,000 has been issued.

Of an authorized issue of 100,000 shares of unclassified common stock of no par value, 35,184 shares have been issued and these are carried at $66.00.

The surplus account is carried at $13,673,793.36, showing an invested capital of the company to be carried at $30,728,703.48.

The previous method of operating was to allow the partners and managers in any single store or group of multiple stores to participate only in

This present move follows one of similar nature made some years ago when all holders of common stock in the company, who were not directly identified in the management of individual stores, but were in the general service of the company, converted their classified holdings into stock of the entire system.

Partnership limitation is removed by the new plan.

Sale restrictions on the stock ownership which for 25 years prevented any but workers in the company owning the stock is removed.

Previous to this plan the stockholder of each individual store had participated only in the gain or loss of that particular store.

of stock holdings will result in two kinds of stock outstanding, common stock of no par value covering the entire company and preferred stock at 6 per cent par value at $100.

The J. C. Penney company operates 773 stores and employs approximately 15,000 people.

Present plans are providing for building the list up to 800 stores before the end of the year.

New York, April 25.—(By the Associated Press).—Heavy selling for both accounts brought about one of the sharpest declines in the market for selling prices, which were particularly acute against American Radiator, American Smelting, Colorado Fuel, Foundation Co., General Railway Signal, International Silver, Loose Wires, Biscuit, National Lead, South Porto Rican Sugar, Stewart-Warner, Vick Chemical and Woolworth, all of which were down three or more points. International Nickel, and relative position rivaling from the recent sustained advance in the prices of many issues. In commission houses the selling of the steadily increasing estimates of property damage from the Mississippi river floods, the Chinese and Mexican situations and the reported increase in brokers' loans, together with the advance in the price to track and other property. Atchison broke 5 1/2 points to 180 1/2 and the Pacific Coast Line, Rock Island, Lackawanna, Denver & Rio Grande Western preferred, Gulf, Mobile & Northern, Lehigh Valley, Kays common, Erie common, Erie preferred, New York Central, "Nickel Plate" common, Reading, Texas & Pacific, Wa-

In many banking quarters, the record was set with a correction, at least in part, of a year's loss.

General Motors (copped from 193 to 187 3/4 despite the publication of a report last week showing $1 a share earned on the common stock, with total net $7,639,790 above that of the first quarter of last year. U. S. Steel fell 1/2 to 16 1/2, closing at the bottom. The stock was abandoned for anything more than the inauguration of dividends

The principal commodity markets moved within rather narrow and irregular limits, with no changes of consequence.

Sensational trading in Italian exchange, which sent the lira up over 40 points to close 53 3/4 cents, the Renewal of selling pressure against the oils followed publication of Marland's quarterly report which showed earnings of only nine cents a share.

Other developments in today's foreign exchange market. Demand sterling and French francs showed little change around $1.85 5-16 and 3.91 1-2 cents, respectively.

Half-a-Million Credit Mistakes

Credit Mistakes Last Year!

21,773 concerns failed in 1926. Suppose they listed an average of 25 creditors each.

That would mean over 500,000 times during the year that creditors were mistaken about the future paying ability of customers. In other words, a half-million credit investigations that gave no warning of coming failures!

You can't avoid or prevent this general condition, but, with you can protect the resources of your own individual concern against all abnormal.

Prominent Manufacturers and Jobbers in every industry are using this broad, comprehensive service year after year. We shall be pleased to recommend a type of policy exactly suited to your particular

THE SECOND IMPORTANT BATTLE OF 1862 TOOK PLACE AT LOGAN'S CROSSROADS NEAR MILL SPRING, KENTUCKY. GEN. GEORGE H. THOMAS WITH A UNION ARMY WAS ADVANCING TOWARD THE CUMBERLAND RIVER AND HAD DIVIDED HIS FORCES FOR A FLANK ATTACK UPON THE CONFEDERATE ARMY OF GEN. FELIX K. ZOLICOFFER AT BEECH GROVE.

LEARNING OF THIS MOVEMENT THE CONFEDERATES RESOLVED TO STRIKE A DECISIVE BLOW BEFORE THE FEDERAL FORCES COULD UNITE. ON JANUARY 19TH TWO CONFEDERATE BRIGADES LED BY ZOLICOFFER ATTACKED THOMAS'S FORCE AND CHARGING FIERCELY DROVE THE FEDERALS BACK ALL ALONG THE LINE.

GEN. THOMAS SUCCEEDED, THOUGH WITH GREAT DIFFICULTY, IN FORMING A STRONG LINE OF BATTLE AND A DESPERATE HAND-TO-HAND ENCOUNTER FOLLOWED. WHEN THE ENGAGEMENT WAS AT ITS HEIGHT, GEN. ZOLICOFFER, WHILE DIRECTING THE ADVANCE OF HIS TROOPS, WAS KILLED BY COL. FRY OF THE FOURTH KENTUCKY INFANTRY.

AFTER HOURS OF HARD FIGHTING, THE CONFEDERATES WERE FORCED TO RETIRE BEFORE A BAYONET CHARGE ON THEIR FLANK BY THE NINTH OHIO AND THAT NIGHT ABANDONED THEIR ENTRENCHMENTS AT BEECH GROVE AND RETREATED ACROSS THE CUMBERLAND.
